Cholera Epidemic.

Bagdad and Mecca Afflicted With the Plague.

WESTERN EUROPE UNEASY.

Great Efforts Being Made to Prevent the Dread Disease from Spreading to Other Places Not Now Affected — Various Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The confirmation of the reported existence of cholera to an epidemic degree at Bagdad and Mecca causes great uneasines in western Europe, and strict precautions are being taken at Marseilles and other entrepots of oriental traffic to prevent, if possible, the introduction of infection through those ports. The cholera at Mecca is always caused, as everybody knows, by the presence of immense crowds of pilgrims to the holy city of Mohammed, who have not the slightest notion of sanitary laws, and who dwell in a condition of filth almost indescribable.

Mecca will continue to be the starting place of cholera epidemics, therefore, until Arabia is placed under some strong and enlightened government, which will enforce sanitary precautions at the holy city. The pilgrimage this year is on a more extensive scale than for many years past and a queer feature of it at Cairo was that the Egyptian troops who turned out to give the procession a start were commanded by British officers. The manner of pilgrimage is now greatly changed, enterprising brokers taking pilgrims in hand and forwarding them by steamer and rail at so much a head; a much more comfortable way than the old journey through the desert; which later, however, is still kept up by force of tradition on the part of the more conservative followers of the prophit.

Affairs in Buenos Ayres.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Times' Buenos Ayres special says that financial chaos and anarchy reign. The bill postponing the payment of bills one month, passed by the chamber, requires the president's signature before becoming law. The notaries refuse to protest bills on the ground that a state of siege existed. Great pressure is being applied to compel President Celman to resign.

Acts of the Copper Ring.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The actions arising from the late operations of the copper ring were brought to a close yesterday. Justice Day held that the guarantee of the Comptior de Escompte could not be enforced, and gave judgment in favor of the Socite Metaux in suits for breach of contracts in the sum of £200,000.

Emin Pasha.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 1.—Emin Pasha has had severe fighting with the Masai. Many of the natives were killed. They were armed with maxim guns: 1,200 of their cattle were seized. Emin also had a battle with the Ugogos, defeating them with great slaughter.

Conceding to Demands.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—It is officially announced that Minister Von Berlepsch has conceded a majority of the demands of the miners' delegates, including the eight-hour shift and the reinstatement of all the men who recently struck.

Denied by German Papers.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—The German newspapers not only deny that the English company is repressing the African slave trade, but they assert that the traffic goes on right under the noses of the company's officials.

John Burns' Latest.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—John Burns is organizing the striking firemen of the channel steamers, and there are indications that the movement will result in the success of the men.

Coming Back.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Mr. Crosby, of the American legation at Berlin, has left for Washington to assume it is stated a position in the foreign department.

Loss of a Steamship.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—A dispatch was received here announcing the total loss of the steamship Gulf St. Vincent. The steamer was commanded by Capt. Cook, registered 3,000 tons and plied between Liverpool and South American ports. Yesterday morning she went ashore on West Mouse rock off Holy Head on the English coast. The vessel and cargo are a total loss. The captain and crew were saved.

Indignant Oregonians.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 1.—Considerable indignation exists in this city over reports published in eastern newspapers, which erroneously represent the population of Portland, as ascertained by the census enumerations, to be but 51,000 persons. It should be stated that the population of Portland and East Portland, which are in fact one city, is shown by the census to amount to 50,250.

The Iron Steed in the Northwest.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—In this week's issue The Engineering News will publish statistics showing the progress of railway construction in the northwestern states. The statistics show that 352 miles of track have been laid to date since Jan. 1, 1890, and that 375 miles are under construction; 2,196 miles are under survey, and 4,854 are projected, with a fair prospect of construction.

Repairing the Cyclone's Damage.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 1.—Carpenters and masons by the score are at work in the district visited by the cyclone, and the debris is being rapidly cleared up, partly ruined houses repaired, and preparations making to construct new ones. Up to the present time $14,550 has been received for the relief of the sufferers.

LABOR TROUBLES.

The Lake Vessel Waste, of Chicago, Paralyzed By a Strike.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Friday will inaugurate a sailors' strike involving every species of sailing craft on the lake system. Not a sailing vessel will leave any port on any of the lakes, and just as fast as vessels that are now out make their appearance they will be added to the list of "laid up."

The prospective strike is due to a demand on the part of the Seamen's union for an increase in wages after Aug. 1 to $2 for sailors, and $1.75 for bargemen, and a further demand that every man on shipboard under the rank of captain shall be a member of the union and shall be shipped from the Seamen's union headquarters by vessel owners. The Vessel Owners' association refused the demand. The only possibility of its failure to materialize will be met by a square back down on the part of one or the other of the interested factions.

Taking Part in a Strike.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—The freestone cutters of the United States have decided to take part in the New England freestone cutters' lockout. Yesterday thirty-two delegates from Chicago, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, New York and many other large cities, arrived here to see if a settlement could be reached. A committee of delegates will wait on the Boston Progressive Freestone Cutters' union, which comprises the men who have taken the vacant places, and submit a plan for uniting in one body all the freestone cutters in North America. The Boston union and the other Progressive union, which is in Philadelphia, will be invited to send delegates to the international convention of freestone cutters at Philadelphia on Aug. 4 next.

Victorious Cloakmakers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—The strike of the cloakmakers here has ended in a victory for the laboring men. The concessions made by the manufacturers are that they will employ only union men and discharge the non-union at present in their employ. On the other hand, the union men have agreed to allow the non-union men who desire to do so to join the union. The question of wages has yet to be decided, a committee of eight members of the union being appointed last evening to confer with the manufacturers concerning their terms. If possible the contract will be signed at once.

Prospects of a Big Strike.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 1.—A Scottdale, Pa., special to The Times says: The Knights of Labor in the coke region yesterday, to the number of 2,000 men, visited the Meyer works and held a meeting and passed resolutions to lend their aid to the employes of Rainey & Company, should they strike for the signing of the wages scale. Superintendent Bradford, of Rainey & Company, says that they will not sign the cokers' scale. The strike, affecting over 900 men, will likely be ordered in a few days.

Strike Settled.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 1.—The strike at the National rolling mill, at McKeesport, was settled yesterday afternoon. The agreement reached is the same by which the men were governed last year. The employes are to receive scale wages but the company will not be required to sign the Amalgamated scale list. Work will be resumed in the mill at once.

Strike Affecting School Houses.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—All the union men employed in repairing the school houses of the city quit work this morning, in accordance with the orders of the board of walking delegates of the building trades. The strike affects more than seventy school houses.

A Negro Murderer Hung.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 1.—A Live Oak special to The Times-Union says: Kelly Stewart, colored, was hanged here yesterday for the murder of John Hawkins about two years ago. Five thousand people were in town to witness the execution. Promptly at 12:10 the prisoner, accompanied by Rev. John Holmes, his spiritual adviser, and the sheriff and his deputy, emerged from the jail and proceeded to the gallows. The prisoner displayed wonderful nerve, and, when asked to talk, said he was ready to die; that his way was clear. The trap fell at 12:32 and his neck was broken. He not struggle or move a muscle. Drs. Hawkins and Overstreet pronounced him dead at 12:54 and the body was cut down at 1:02 p. m. This is the first hanging in Suwanee county in twelve years.

Shooting in a Bank.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—The Picayune's Greenwood, Miss., special says: Our city was thrown into great excitement yesterday by the firing of fifteen shots near the Delt bank. On reaching the spot, Walter Stoddard was found lying on the sidewalk dead and J. D. Money, a prominent planter and a brother of Congressman Money was sitting on the curbstone shot in one leg and a flesh wound in the other, both wounds being below the knee. The trouble grew out of charges of corruption made against the city government and illustrated by a local artist.

A Colored Woman Murdered.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Aug. 1.—Great excitement exists here caused by the supposed murder of a colored woman. Hannah Ford and her husband quarreled and went to live in separate houses. Hannah threatened to lay her husband out. He knocked her down and called for some men to take her home. She was found to be dead, but the jury of inquest yesterday decided that she died from unknown causes.

No Deadlock There.

MONTGOMERY, Aug. 1.—Hon. H. A. Herbert was renominated by acclamation for congress from the Second congressional district of Alabama yesterday.

The House and Senate

Proceedings of Both Branches of Congress.

NEITHER ACCOMPLISH MUCH.

The Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Discussed in the House, While the Senate is Still Talking Tariff—Other Dispatches from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A resolution was offered in the house yesterday by Mr. Oates, of Alabama, providing for an investigation of the charge made by The National Economist that money was spent in lobbying the silver bill through congress. The speaker ruled that the resolution was not a privileged question, and on appeal the house sustained the ruling—95 to 71. The senate irrigation amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill was discussed at length and non-concurred in. The house adjourned, however, without ordering a conference on the bill.

In the senate but few senators were present at 10 o'clock and some time was wasted waiting for a quorum. The conference report on the district appropriation bill was agreed to. During the afternoon four pages of the tariff bill were finished, all of the committee amendments being agreed to. Mr. Blair stated at this rate, the bill would be finished about Dec. 20.

How He Can Get His Wife.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The solicitor of the treasury has given an opinion to Secretary Windom in regard to the question propounded by the Rev. F. J. Masters, superintendent of the Chinese mission church, San Francisco, as to whether Dr. Langdon, now residing in San Francisco, could bring his wife to this country under existing law. The secretary has informed Mr. Masters that unless Mrs. Langdon secures a certificate from the Chinese government, she cannot land.

No War Now.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A dispatch confirmatory of earlier press dispatches was received at the state department yesterday from Minister Pitkin at Buenos Ayres, stating that the revolutionists in that city have capitulated and that the insurrection is at an end.

A Military Order.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Capt. David A. Lyle, ordnance department, has completed his duties at Paris, France, and has been ordered to report to the commanding officer New York arsenal for duty at the United states proving ground.

The "Winona."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. — The new revenue steamer now in course of construction at Wilmington, Del., will be launched next Tuesday afternoon. She has been named "Winona," after Secretary Windom.

July Debt Statement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—It is estimated at the treasury department that the monthly debt statement will show an increase of about $4,000,000 during the month of July.

A Rock Causes a Wreck.

ST PAUL, Minn., Aug. 1.—Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night a freight train bound for St. Paul ran into a large rock that had rolled down from the bluff at a point just north of Diamond Bluff, on the C., B. & N. railroad, derailing the engine and wrecking seven or eight freight cars. A man named William Woodward, was so badly injured that he died from the effects during the night, and three or four tramps who were stealing a ride were also more or less injured. One of them, name unknown, rather seriously.

All Caused by Jealousy.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 1.—This morning at 9 o'clock Peter McCrory, night watchman at the St. Louis cemetery, aged 36 years, in a fit of jealous rage, called at the residence of John Heep, and calling Annie Staken, a pretty servant girl, to the door, shot her in the head with a revolver, inflicting a mortal wound. He then fired two bullets into his own head. His wounds are not considered fatal. McCrory had threatened on several occasions to take the girl's life.

They Will Be Extradited.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The three cattlemen, John McNamara, Henry Allison and James Tynan, who were the ringleaders in the riot on the steamer Chicago, and who broke into the hold and stole liquor on the voyage, were yesterday held for extradition charged with larceny. This is the first case under the new treaty with Great Britain in which larceny on ship board is made an extraditable offence.

Evidence of Peace.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—A dispatch received in this city from Buenos Ayres via Galveston says: "Telegraphic communication with Buenos Ayres via Galveston is reopened." The officials of the Mexican Telegraph company in this city say the fact that this message came over the Transandine line is an indication that peace reigns throughout the Argentine Republic.

Damaging Storm in the East.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—From different sections of New England reports last night that the intensely hot weather of the past two or three days was followed yesterday afternoon and evening by severe thunder and wind storms, doing considerable damage.

Nine Cases of Heat Prostrations.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—At 2 p. m., in this city, yesterday, the thermometer registered 97 degrees in the shade. There were nine cases of heat prostrations, one of them being fatal.

FIRE IN CHICAGO.

Five Firemen Injured, Two of Them Probably Fatally.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Five firemen were injured at a fire last night at Union and Lake streets, and two of them will probably die. The names of the injured are:

Richard Lynch, driver of Engine No. 20.

Daniel Callahan, of Engine company No. 18.

John Looney.

Frank Donogan.

Lieutenant Murphy, of Engine company No. 7.

Lynch, whose injuries are more severe than any of the others, was taken to the county hospital dying.

The fire started shortly after 10 o'clock on the third floor of J. Foster Rhode's big building at 156 and 158 West Lake street. The floor was occupied by the Chicago architectural works, and before the fire was discovered it had run half through the building. At one time the flames threatened to spread to the adjoining buildings, and, although a large percentage of the operatives, of the fire department was engaged on the North pier, a second alarm was sounded. Richard Lynch, driver of engine No. 20, was standing on the roof of a blacksmith shop west of the burning building. He fell through an open skylight to the floor of the shop, a distance of thirty feet. He was taken out unconscious.

Daniel Callahan, of engine company No. 13, was on a ladder in front of the blacksmith shop when he slipped and fell to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. He was badly battered and bruised. Lieut. Murphy, John Looney and Frank Donogan, of company No. 7, were on a ladder in front of No. 158 West Lake street. Their combined weight was too much for the ladder and it broke, precipitating the men to the sidewalk, nearly forty feet. Donogan was injured severely internally. His injuries may result fatally. Looney sustained a fracture of the right ankle, and was otherwise injured. Lieut. Murphy escaped with a few injuries, not serious.

The losses are: Building, $8,000; Chicago architectural works, $8,000; A. F. Schultz, $3,000; Sherman, Tangberg & Company, $5,000; Salter & Bilek, $2,000; Variety Wood Turning company $2,000; Palace laundry, $200.

Forty-One Dwellings Burned.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 1.—Forty-one dwelling houses were destroyed by fire in Braddock yesterday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock, and more than 300 persons were for the time being, rendered homeless. The fire broke out in a stable on Washington street. A strong wind carried the flames along both sides of the street, until more than two blocks of buildings were burned. The houses were all frame structures, and in a few moments the fire was beyond control. The high wind carried the burning shingles long distances and at one time furious flames were burning in five different places, threatening the lower part of the town near the steel works with destruction.

The burgess telegraphed to this city for assistance. Two fire engines were ordered to the scene, but their services were not required. The houses were nearly all owned and occupied by employes at the steel works and the families of laborers. Very little of their household effects were saved. Late yesterday evening all of the homeless had been provided with temporary lodging places. To-day Manager Schwab, of the steel works, will begin the erection of houses for his employes on the fire-swept district. The loss on buildings and household goods will aggregate $60,000. The insurance is estimated at $25,000. No serious accidents are reported.

Five Fires in Two Months.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—The extensive plant of the Missouri Car and Foundry company was partially destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $25,000; partially insured. About 400,000 feet of dry timber was destroyed. This was the fifth time the shops have been on fire in two months.

Fire in a Brewery.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—An explosion of mill dust followed by a fire, in the malt house of the Keely Brewing company, at Cottage Grove avenue and Twenty-ninth street last night, caused a loss of about $50,000. No one was injured and the fire was soon gotten under control.

Ice Factory Burned.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 1.—The Journal's Seattle, Wash., special says: Donaldson's ice factory at Yester, near this city, was burned yesterday. Loss $40,000; partially insured.

Arrested for Arson.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Hyman Silverman, proprietor of a small dry goods store in Jersey City, was arrested yesterday morning charged with setting fire to his store Wednesday. Silverman had an insurance of $500 on about $100 worth of goods. The building was completely gutted, and a number of families sleeping in the upper tenement rooms were rescued with great difficulty. All of their effects were burned.

Murdered by His Shepherds.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—The Times-Democrat Laredo, Tex., special says: News has been received here of the murder near the Webb and La Salle county line, of an old Frenchman named Bartiendo formerly a business man of this city, where he had many friends. About a year ago he went into the sheep business. It is stated that he was murdered by his shepherds who have escaped into Mexico.

A Four Thousand Dollar Stamp Robbery.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—A robbery of $4,000 worth of stamps from the post-office was discovered shortly after noon yesterday. The theft is believed to have been committed by a suspicious looking man, who was seen about the office in the morning, and who probably took the train for Boston.

NO NOMINATIONS MADE.

The Conventions at Washington C. H. and Hillsboro Put in Another Day Without Nominating Candidates—They Both Adjourn Sine Die.

WASHINGTON C. H., Aug. 1.—The convention recommenced balloting this morning just where it left off the previous night, but after a few votes the Greene county delegation cast its entire strength, forty-five votes, for Gen. Bushnell, who said, after the cheering had subsided, that he could not accept the nomination, and asked the convention to support the man who he came here to aid, E. S. Wallace. Balloting proceeded, and after a time Fayette county asked and obtained leave to retire for consultation.

When the Fayette men returned, after three-quarters of an hour, they voted as follows: Little, 16; Wallace, 6; Doane, 5; Hurst, 3—giving Wallace a total of 68; Doane, 41; Hurst, 49, and Little, 61.

They soon went back to Hurst again, and then kept scattering their votes, at intervals giving Hurst a solid vote.

On the 381th ballot Fayette gave Little thirty votes, making his total vote 75, but changed after several ballots to Doan. On the 390th ballot Fayette gave Wallace its vote, giving him 92 in all. All but eighteen of nomination, but again went back to Hurst. Pending the 400th ballot the convention adjourned until 2 p. m.

At 2:30 p. m. the convention, when it reassembled, quickly took seven more ballots like the first, and continued in the same strain for some time.

After the 442d ballot had been taken, Dr. McClain, of Brown county, moved that the convention adjourn, to meet at Sardinia, in Brown county, the first Tuesday in September.

The motion was put and lost by a large majority. At the end of the 449th ballot the Brown county delegation retired for ten minutes to consult.

During the 461st ballot, Levi Mills, of Clinton, moved that the rules be suspended and that delegates be allowed to cast secret ballots, the individual vote of each member of the convention to be deposited in a hat and counted by the secretary. The motion raised quite a breeze, and an amendment was offered to have the counties canvass the vote. Both were defeated.

After 532 ballots the convention adjourned sine die. The last ballot resulted as follows: Little 69, Wallace 67, Hurst 47, Doan 36.

The Deadlock at Hillsboro.

HILLSBORO, O., Aug. 1.—Yesterday morning at 8 o'clock the convention reassembled, and balloting continued about the same as on the previous day. After the taking of the 106th ballot, Andrew King withdrew his name and his vote went to White. After the 129th ballot had been taken the Hon. H. L. Dickey, of Highland county, withdrew his name, and his vote went to R. T. Hongh, of the same county.

After the 154th ballot had been taken, and the convention seemed no nearer a result that an the start, the convention recessed for ten minutes.

After the 197th ballot had been taken without a nomination the convention took a recess until 1 o'clock. On this ballot twenty-five votes from Adams county went to Washburn, of Pike, giving him 47 votes.

After taking 425 ballots the convention adjourned sine die. Thus referring the whole matter back to the district committee. After thanks to the citizens of Hillsboro the memorable convention came to a close. It will be necessary now for another convention to be called, delegates elected, etc.

Desperate Battle With Tramps.

MASSILON, O., Aug. 1.—Officers Thomas Hogan and Frank Ertle had a desperate battle with a large gang of tramps, who spent the afternoon in drinking five kegs of beer near the bridge shop. In the attempt to arrest them the officers shot three of them, one through the left leg, another through the back part of the head and another through the back. The wounded men and seven others were locked up. The leader gives his name as William Hauke, and hails from Canton; three others claim to be from Titusville, Pa.

LIVED IN SECLUSION.

Peculiar Actions of an English Nobleman in America.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The World's Liverpool special says:

Among the passengers on the steamer Teutonic, which arrived Wednesday, was Viscount Boyle, the missing heir to the earldom of Shannon.

"I have no romantic story to tell," he said to The World correspondent. "I have simply come home to take possession of the family estates and to assume my duties as a British peer. I first learned of my father's death in an old copy of The San Francisco Chronicle, which I picked up by chance at a hotel in Seattle, where I had gone to sell some horses.

"I had been running a small stock ranch, 100 miles from Boise City, and was surprised to find my brother advertising for me. I wrote to him in England, but he had gone to New York and the letter was forwarded to him there. He wired me as soon as he could to arange my affairs and come to New York and meet him. I did not remain in New York seven hours."

"But why did you not write to your relatives or make your whereabouts known through all these years?"

"Well, there really is no good reason. I always was a poor correspondent. I intended to write every week, but I always put it off."

Lord Boyle's Story.

In brief, Lord Boyle's story, as he gives it, is this:

He went to America in 1882 to start a stock farm in Canada. He was a member of the Dominion parliament for Fort McLeod. His brother, the same one who was advertising for him, was there in the same business at the same time. Early in 1887 the younger brother tired of stock raising and went home, but Lord Boyle determined to try his luck again in another part of the country.

He first went to Tacoma and finally bought a farm and a few horses near Boise City. There he went under the name of Boyle, always taking pains to conceal his title. From the time he settled there, three years ago, he never heard from or wrote to any friends or relatives, and never read any newspaper. Three times in the three years he journeyed to Seattle to sell horses. It was on his last visit that he picked up the newspaper advertising for him.

Lord Boyle repeated several times that he had no ulterior motive in concealing his whereabouts; had no quarrel with his family, or alliances by marriage or otherwise which made his seclusion desirable. He simply took a notion to keep quiet for a time and did so.

Thirteen Funerals.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 1.—Sad were the scenes in Baltimore yesterday at the homes of the victims, as the last sad rites of Christian burial took place. With the exception of one, the dead—thirteen in number—were all interred. Solemn funeral trains could be seen at nearly any time during the day moving slowly out of the city to some cemetery, where the black shrouded coffin containing the remains were consigned to the narrow confines of the grave.

Arrested for Train Robbery.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 1.—A Trinidad special says that Ed. Carroll, Ed. McCarthy, Tom Higgins and D. P. Gold, all bad characters were arrested yesterday for the attempt to rob the Santa Fe train Wednesday night. They were locked up in default of bail for a hearing Saturday.

—AN EFFECTUAL SPECIFIC FOR—

Malaria, Bowel Complaints, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Kidney Affections, Jaundice, Mental Depression, Colic.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectually move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

Latest Advices Received By the Steamship Belgic.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—The steamship Belgic, twenty-three days from Hong Kong and fourteen from Yokohama has arrived here. Advices from Japan state that the authorities propose to enforce the provisions of the act of 1884 regulating the hunting by foreigners of seal and otter hunting about Hokk Tido Hemuro and the Sighalieu islands, and a man-of-war will be sent to the islands to prevent trespassing.

Heavy rains in Chi Kuzen Puzen districts July 4 and 6, washed away bridges across all streams, considerably delaying railroad traffic. A number of houses were swept away and one person killed.

The total number of cholera cases up to July 11 had increased to 389 and 114 deaths. Forty-seven fresh cases and fifteen deaths were reported that day. On the 12th, thirty fresh cases and twenty-seven deaths were reported from Nagasaki. The emperor has sanctioned the expenditure of $43,000 of the reserve fund for disinfecting purposes.

The latest reports of disorder on account of the high price of rice come from Aikawa, Sado Island. About 2,000 poor people, aided by miners, began rioting on the 10th instant, and the police being powerless, troops were sent from a neighboring garrison. On the 4th instant news was received that the rioters were becoming more powerful, and were destroying the residences and property of the rich merchants.

George W. Cable's Mother Dead.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Rebecca Cable, mother of George W. Cable, died at her home in Northampton yesterday.

Why It is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequaled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

WRECK ON THE C. AND A.

Train 12 Ditched at Espyville at an Early Hour This Morning.

An open switch at Espyville, a station on the C. and A. near here, threw the baggage car, two day coaches and two sleepers from the track, badly smashing them. It is supposed that the switch had been partly closed by some one thinking that he had completely shut it.

The train was in charge of Conductor Burgess and Engineer Quigley who did everything possible for the comfort of their passengers until another train went out from here and brought them to the junction where they could take Erie train 12 and go on east. No one was injured but all received a good jolting. One of the coaches ditched was the through sleeper from Chicago to Columbus.

A wrecking train was sent to the scene of the wreck and is now clearing the track and repairing the damage. All trains on this end of the road were run over the C., H. V. and T. and P., F. W. and via Upper Sandusky. A large crowd from here has been at the scene of the smashup all day, having went out on the wrecking train. Trains were not delayed but a few minutes on account of the wreck.

CALEB MERRITT.

He Dies at His Home in Claridon Township, at an Advanced Age.

Caleb Merritt, a native of Orange county, New York state, died at his home in Claridon township, Thursday evening, in his 81st year. He was among the oldest citizens of Marion county, having been a resident of the county 66 years. He had been sick a good while previous to his death, but during his sickness he had a constant hope of again getting about, notwithstanding his advanced age.

Deceased was a man of the most economical habits, and by his industry and frugality accumulated a very comfortable fortune. His entire life was spent in farming, with an additional turn at sheep raising. His estate includes between three and four hundred acres of land near his late home, about one mile west of Slick's Station. He was the father of eight children. Politically, he was a Republican of long standing.

The funeral of deceased will occur Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. at the house, and the remains will be placed in the Marion cemetery vault.

ARM BROKEN.

A Dangerous Accident to a Young Man South of Town.

A young man named William Tavener, son of Jonah Tavener, residing about five miles south of this city, met with an accident Thursday afternoon which terminated quite luckily considering the perilous position the victim was in for a time. The accident occurred while working with a threshing machine. A belt flew off and while the machine was in motion young Tavener undertook to replace it. In doing so his hand was caught in the belt and his arm drawn in between the belt and the pulley. His wrist and elbow were both broken, inflicting a most painful wound.

His release without the complete loss of the arm and perhaps other serious injuries is considered most fortunate.

Probate Court.

J. B. Riley appointed guardian of Emma L. Lewis.

S. T. Beerbower appointed administrator de bonis non of the estate of Harriet V. Franklin.

S. N. Myers and R. J. Myers, administrators of the estate of Jonathan Myers, filed second and final account.

G. N. Myers, administrator of the estate of Gustav Trapp, filed appraisement of real estate; order to sell at private sale.

—Citizens of Marion, if you want to use water from the city waterworks, call on Vaughan & Allen. They are prepared to do plumbing as cheap and as perfect as any person or persons living. They guarantee their work and they are able to make their guarantee good. Although they do not tap the mains, the waterworks company has no favorites. They treat all alike This firm can get your tap as soon as it can be procured by anyone. They use the best material and do not want to make a fortune in one season in order that they may migrate to another town. Their interests are here and they will remain here. See them before contracting elsewhere.

—Mrs. Caroline Sontag and daughter, Miss Flora, who had been visiting relatives in this city, have returned to their home in Portsmouth, Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. Lew Sontag and little child, who will remain with them a couple weeks.

—Erie train 1 was over two hours late this morning, being delayed by the meeting of the many excursion trains that road had Thursday. One hundred passenger coaches could have been used if they could have secured them.

—Cardington Independent: The annual reunion of the 96th O. V. I. will be held at Greenwood Lake, Delaware, August 19th and 20th.

—The building formerly occupied by the Normal Vidette is to be used as a store room. A stock of groceries is to be placed therein in the near future.

—Hal. Copeland, Fred Jones and Frank Cockrell returned Thursday evening from the Logan county reservoir, after nearly a week spent in fishing.

—Mrs. A. G. Vega, of Louisville, Ky., stopped off here today while on her way to Williamsport, Pa., and was a guest at the home of her cousin, Fred Issleib.

—A delightful party was given at the home of Miss Emma Nitehardt, about four miles south of the city, Thursday evening. About twenty guests were present from here and abroad. Refreshments were served and all report a most delightful time.

—A most pleasant evening is reported by those who attended the Odd Fellows' banquet Thursday evening. The members were joined in the festivities by the Daughters of Rebekah, and over two hundred persons were seated at the banquet table. Speeches, music and a general social time was enjoyed. The banquet was given as an informal dedication of the newly improved hall.

—Mt. Victory Observer: A Richwood young lady has been brought to grief by answering an advertisement in a matrimonial paper. Miss Imogene Rostte was married to a man named Blake, who claimed to be of English birth and heir to $200,000. They were married on July 7th, and in a few days left for their home in England, but he deserted her in New York City. Thus it is with those who answer advertisements of such nature in papers.

—Findlay Republican: A Findlay Democratic politician who has made a study of the situation estimates the vote of the congressional convention at Carey as follows: Boston G. Young 50; Zugschwert 55; Dunn 50; complimentary votes 18. This gentleman says that he has positive and substantial assurance that Mr. Dunn will get 50 votes. Zuschwert is assured a goodly support from Seneca where Seney will give him substantial aid. He will also get votes in Wyandot and probably a few in Union county. The contest will be practically between the men named with the fear continually that Seney will make himself the compromise candidate.

LaRue.

La Rue is here, dry as powder. Everything parched. Corn about gone up the spout, and no sign of rain. Oats being cut, it is short and will be light. Potatoes a bad failure. Wheat is better than we supposed it would be, but will not average for the four west townships in the county more than fifteen bushels to the acre harvested. Hay will be plenty and of a good quality. Pastures drying up fast. All kinds of grain will sell high within six months is my opinion.

Henry Sharp has made an assignment don't know how his affairs will show up, though I expect he had better have sold out, and divided among his creditors and saved expenses.

The mortgage indebtedness in Montgomery township is greater than I expected; somebody is in debt. When will men learn to live within their income? Before another year passes by failures will increase and a good many will have to use more economy, and be more industrious, and make a better use of time or suffer the legitimate penalty resulting from not doing so. The next twelve months will pinch closer than the last has, and the pressure will be felt generally.

B. F. Waples was out here a few days lately assisting our land appraiser in closing up his matters.

I have rented Isaac Clark about fifty acres of land within the corporation for the next year for five dollars per year. He has had thirty acres of it for the past two years. I have about sixty acres that was clover sod last year—frozen out last winter—situated near Moon's, north of the railroad, I would rent for a wheat crop. A good chance.

Charley Quigley has bought a farm of 71 acres over in Bowling Green township.

G. W. Myers is suffering from sciattia; walks with crutches, very lame, talks of going to Magnetic Springs. This is the place to go to get relief.

I don't here of much sickness. People had better use a few doses of quinine every two weeks as a preventative, however. Cool nights and hot days will start up chills.

The Scioto is very low, some wells are, too. Not a cloud to be seen, nor a sign of rain, I fear a long dry spell is before us. We have had about a month now.

Methodist quarterly meeting last Sunday. The presiding elder was here and the brethren were revived some.

Once in awhile we hear a little prohibition. It is feeble and failing. The Farmers' Alliance, another party trying to spring up, say they are not seeking office.

Foster can win for congress in this district if he will make the race, he is fully competent for the place and the masses' friend.

La Rue is a little dull. People are threshing wheat and selling at 80 cents now. If the corn crop fails badly it will bring a dollar before long.

July 29. C.

Caledonia.

Another week of fine weather has been added. Growing crops are doing finely, and wheat threshing was never better.

Ferd Ganshorn and Wm Lee accompanied the Beech ball club to Ashley Saturday, only to be defeated 11 to 14.

M. V Harrison shipped three loads of cattle Saturday at considerable loss, one load of hogs Monday doing him little good. Frank Hill shipped one load of cattle, reaching within $55 of an offer here on track Martin Koch also shipped a car of stock.

Elmer Stanley has rented the Hanley House and taken possession. We wish the landlord and land ady a pleasant and profitable season in their new enterprise. Mr. Clark will return to Richwood a wiser man.

The Eureka mill is running full time now. The old miller, H Ramer, doing the night work.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Rosa Bonheur is 67 years of age and her brush is still busy. For her last picture she received $10,000.

Mme. Patti is to receive a casket and the freedom of Swansea, Wales, at the National Eisteddfodd to be held next year.

Providence, R. I., has a female pastor in the person of Mrs. Anna Garlan Spencer, who has charge of the Bell Street church.

Mrs. Haymarker, a native of Bombay, after receiving a medical education in Philadelphia is about to return to her own people as a missionary.

The Southern Pacific ocean has a monopolist in the person of Mrs. Emma Forsythe, a rich widow, who owns a goodly part of the island of New Britain. Mrs Forsythe goes by the name of the White Queen.

One of the pretty California heiresses is Miss Grace McDonough, who will inherit a fortune of $3,000,000 from her mother. She is a tall, stately girl, with a haughty manner, but a sweet and attractive face.

It is related that the late Marchioness of Ely was much admired in her youth by Cavour, who would have married her had she been willing to leave the British court and her intimate friend, Queen Victoria.

Miss L. Ackroyd, of Newnham college, England, has been nominated to occupy the university table at the laboratory of the Marine Biological association at Plymouth for one month during the year 1890.

Miss Elizabeth Peabody, whose charities and benevolence have made her so distinguished throughout New England, is now 87 years old. She is in comparatively good health, but is waiting quietly for the ends

Mme Lillian Nardica, the gifted musician, uses up a piano and a gallon of scented water every month. She is a hard worker, a home lover and an anti-athlete, never walking any further than the carriage step.

By her will the late Mrs. Emily Pfeiffer, the well known English poet, bequeathes, with the exception of a few legacies, the whole of her personal estate of £63,000 to charitable and educational establishments for women.

The latest description of Margaret Deland, the Boston writer, represents her as a slender young woman plunging through the snow drifts of Beacon street with a market basket on her arm and her big dog at her side.

Mrs. M. Edith Howcott, of New Orleans, probably owns more real estate than any other southern woman. She has in her own right over 50,000 acres of selected timber lands in Louisiana and Mississippi, and is still buying.

Bertha von Hillern is still an ardent pedestrian, though most of her time is now devoted to work in her studio in the Virginia mountains. She is a devout Catholic, and frequently walks eleven miles to church and back again.

Frances Power Cobbe, the well known English writer, was born in 1822; she writes frequently for the reviews and magazines on social, ethical and religious subjects, and is also a prominent leader of the anti-vivisection movement in England.

Portugal has a female bull fighter. Her name is Clotilde Mejstrik. She has practiced for bull fighting only since last April 1, yet is wonderfully expert in the arena. At her debut in Oporto she killed two bulls, and a week later in Lisbon she killed two more.

Mrs. Dorothy Stanley's last act as an unmarried artist was the sale of her picture of "Street Arabs at Play" to a great soap selling firm for a pictorial advertisement. She expressed her willingness that the picture should be used for that purpose if it were not changed in any manner.

Miss Alita Proctor Otis, the editor of Saturday Review, has her bread-and-butter day love for dolls. Mrs. Senator Platt is another devotee of the doll, and in one corner of her Fifth Avenue hotel parlor is a small stand, where a group of talking doll babies sit with staring eyes and parted lips.

The Duchess of Cleveland is a first rate artist. She is the owner of a house in Grosvenor place, London, which contains a great many beautiful paintings which were the work of the proprietress. These include a most charming portrait of the late Duchess of Westminster in the lovely days of her early youth.

Helen Mathers, the author of "Cherry Ripe" and other successful novels, has never written anonymously, or employed her pen in journalistic work of any kind, no inducement will make her take up her pen when she is not in the mood; yet she once wrote two three volume novels in six months and made $10,000 out of them.

ROYAL FLUSHES.

The sultan is described as a thin, pale, black haired man with a sharp eye. He is 48 years old.

Queen Victoria has given $250 to a fund raised for the purpose of putting a steamer on the Victoria Nyanza.

The king of Belgium requested the honor of contributing best man for Stanley's wedding, and named Comte Daroche for that honor

Emperor William has declared that the next birthday of Count Von Moltke shall be kept as a national holiday. The famous strategist was born Oct. 26, 1800, at Parchim Mecklenburg.

The Princess Dolgorouki is one of the most accomplished amateur violin players in Europe. She is also pretty, having a fair complexion, delicate features and the refinement of the best Slav type. She dresses picturesquely.

The prince of Schaumburg Lippe, the father of the Emperor William's intended brother-in-law, is one of the richest of the German sovereigns. He possesses a very large fortune and vast estates in Bohemia, Hungary and Upper Austria and is the owner of nearly the whole of his principality, which lies between Cologne and Berlin, and it contains an area of nine German square miles

AMERICAN INDIAN STATISTICS.

The Indian agencies are 61 in number.

RAILWAY BRIEFS.

There were 1,900 miles of track built in the United States up to July 1, 1890, as compared with 1,420 miles the first half of 1889.

The Frisco line boasts of a tramp who has passed the time for four years "counting the ties" on that road. He is known as "the Senator."

The first practical step in the erection of the great Pan-American railroad was taken when ground was broken recently near Brownsville, Tex., for the Corpus Christi and South American railroad.

A southern newspaper says that an oak tie coated with creosote will last from eighteen to twenty-six years. The fact remains, however, that the average life of wooden cross ties is only about eight years.

According to the annual report of the commissioner of labor, Carroll D. Wright, the number of employes on all the railroads of the country amount to 700,000. There are 1,518 different railroad corporations.

A special train on the Northern railroad of France recently ran from Paris to Calias, 184.14 miles, in three hours and fifty minutes, an average of forty-eight miles per hour At times the speed was seventy-one miles per hour.

The New York Central recently paid to a New York insurance company a premium of $40,000 on total insurance of property in and near New York of $4,595,000. This is said to have been the largest single premium ever paid

Two gold spikes were driven recently in the last two rails of the Lehigh Valley railroad connection between the Lehigh and Schuylkill valleys at Rembiont, West Penn township, Schuylkill county, Pa. This line will bring Pottsville within four hours journey of New York.

A fireman says: "I know a little kink about lighting a headlight on stormy and windy nights. Take an old train order and curl it around on top of the lamp wick so as to leave a portion of it sticking up, and by dropping a lighted match down the chimney it will ignite and the head light is lit."

The Rochester (N. Y.) Post-Express says that Thomas Connors, of Elmira, track inspector of the Rochester division of the Erie, is one of the veterans of New York state. He began railroading in 1849 on the Delaware division of the Erie, and has since 1852 been foreman and track inspector on the Rochester division.

On the Central Pacific railroad the cylinders of the locomotives have been utilized to increase the supply of air to the brakes. This is accomplished by reversing the locomotive when it is going ahead, thus causing the cylinders to act as air compressors, driving large volumes of air into the train pipes and reservoirs.

THE LATEST IN JEWELRY.

An odd conception for cuff links is a gold barrel with platinum hoops.

A pearl capped pin piercing a horn of plenty from which diamonds and rubies are issuing is a scarf pin of rare beauty.

A platinum fleur-de lis in the center of a disk of gold flower work forms the pretty design of a pair of cuff buttons.

A late pin that occupies a prominent position simulates in silver and enamel a bunch of elderberries and yellow daisies.

A two karat diamond shows to good advantage in a platinum mounting strung on a frail chain from a bracelet of twisted gold.

Parisian jewelers are having a brisk demand for a crescent shaped hairpin of gold having several stars containing gems clinging to the sides.

A diminutive street lamp post of gold, showing two sides, in each of which a diamond, a ruby and a sapphire are mounted, is an attractive scarf pin.

Quite an oddity in rings is one simulating the bit of a horse's bridle, curved in such a manner that the side levers formed the setting for an emerald.

Two crossed palm leaf fans, represented in yellow gold and showing the impudent face of a moonstone cherub peering between, constitute an artistic novelty in lace pins.

A diminutive rowboat of gold, laden to the guards with enameled violets and forget-me-nots, in which several diamonds are shown, was the lace pin worn by a seaside belle recently.

A presentation watch of recent make has the case elaborately decorated with a diamond and ruby pointer gazing at a bevy of wild ducks overhead. The latter are shown in inlaid enamel of various colors.

A pair of earrings recently produced at the request of an enthusiastic yachtswoman represented the rowlocks of a small boat. A diamond of great brilliancy was mounted in the crescent shaped part of each ornament.—Jewelers' Weekly.

WHERE THE DAY IS LONGEST.

At Spitzbergen the longest day is 3½ months.

At Stockholm, Sweden, it is 18½ hours in length.

At London, England, and Bremen, Prussia, the longest day has 16½ hours.

At New York the longest day is about 15 hours, and at Montreal, Canada, it is 16 hours.

At Wardbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 22 without interruption.

At St. Petersburg, Russia, and Tobolsk, Siberia, the longest day is 19 hours and the shortest 5 hours.

At Tornea, Finland, June 21 brings a day nearly 22 hours long, and Christmas one less than 3 hours in length.—New York Morning Journal.

SCIENTIFIC SQUIBS.

The average width of the path of destruction with tornadoes is said to be a little more than 1,000 feet.

Among the most ingenious inventions lately exhibited is a machine for drilling square, oblong or hexagonal holes, heretofore found to be impossible

As far as experiments with car brakes have been carried there is found to be practically no difference between the different metals so far as their power is concerned, although their wearing qualities differ materially.

In some of the enduring tests of the Maxim gun in Germany, 84,000 rounds were fired from a single barrel, 30,000 rounds of cartridges with steel covered bullets being fired from a single barrel before the rifling was materially injured.

London Engineering says it need excite no surprise if before many years the first class Atlantic ships maintain an average speed of thirty to thirty five miles an hour, and a four days' journey between Queenstown and Sandy Hook is probably not at all an impossible thing in the future.

On an excursion down the river a young physician fell overboard and seemed in imminent danger of drowning. Owing to the earnest efforts, however, of a solemn looking man dressed in black he was saved. On being asked why he so exerted himself he could only answer: "I know him; he is one of my best friends. Although I am an undertaker, I should certainly be sorry to bury Dr. Killum."—Philadelphia Times.

Delicate persons, and all whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic, purging medicine, does not weaken or deplete the system as other purgatives do, but acts gently. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, of Ga., says. "Simmons Liver Regulator is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Naugatuck, N. J.

WHO WROTE THE VERSES?

CONTROVERSY REGARDING "BEAUTIFUL SNOW" REOPENED.

Sketch of the Life of James W. Watson, Who Died Recently in New York, and Whose Claims Seem to Have Had the Best Authority.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, July 28.—It has happened to many men who have worked for a long lifetime patiently and well that they have achieved fame by some single piece of work that seems by comparison no better than many other things they may have done. Such fortune as this seems especially to fall to literary men, and one of the most conspicuous recent examples was James W. Watson, who died only the other day in this city. He had been for fifty years a writer, and by no means an unsuccessful one as the business goes; yet of all his writings only one poem is fairly to be called famous, and curiously enough the authorship of that one led to one of the bitterest controversies in the history of American literature.

No reader of the present generation can be ignorant of the dispute that lasted for years over the question as to who really wrote "Beautiful Snow." It was originally published in Harper's Weekly, in November, 1858. At the time of its publication the Harpers were not in the habit of publishing the signatures of their contributors, and the poem appeared anonymously. It caught the popular favor, and has become one of the best known poems of American authorship, being included in various collections, such as school readers and books of recitations. It is hard to tell just why it became popular, for it is not, from a literary standpoint, entitled to great praise, but something in its simple directness made it a success.

After a time several persons claimed to have written it, and for a time there was great doubt as to who the real author was, but it was at length acknowledged generally that Mr. Watson was entitled to the credit. William Cullen Bryant included the poem in his famous collection and ascribed its authorship to Watson, and the question may be fairly considered settled.

In addition to Mr. Bryant's authority Horace Greeley lent the force of his name to the assertion that Watson was the real author, and the Harpers declared positively that he had written the poem. The elder Harpers, it may be mentioned, were warm friends of Mr. Watson as long as they lived.

I see that in a recent issue of The New York World Col. William Allen Silloway claims that his name was given as the author of the poem in Bryant's book, but this is not true. Col. Silloway, who is a printer by occupation, and lives in West Washington place, says that he wrote the poem in 1850 and sent it to Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney, and that it was first published in 1854 in Maria Louise Hankins' paper. A portrait painter named McMasters, of New York, Elizabeth Akers, Dora Thorne, Henry W. Faxon and others are among the claimants to authorship of the verses.

Mr Watson was born in New York city in 1822. His father, Mr. Alexander Watson, was an Englishman by birth, and was at one time a prosperous merchant. Before his son reached manhood, however, reverses came, and the boy was obliged to look out for himself. He had a natural aptitude for the engraver's art, and learned it, only to leave it afterward for the less reliable but more fascinating art of authorship

He began work as a journalist on The New York Herald on the day that James Gordon Bennett the younger was born, which was just about fifty years ago. Continuing for some time to work in The Herald office, he gradually became known as a graceful versifier and story writer, and up to the time of his last illness he was a frequent contributor to a great number of publications. At one time, for some twelve or fourteen years, he was under contract to write four continued stories a year for Saturday Night, each story to be over sixty columns in length. For this he received an income of $4,000 a year and lived comfortably. The work, however, was not congenial to him, and after the time mentioned he felt unable to continue under the strain. He therefore resigned his place, and from that time onward supported himself all too poorly by the sale of occasional contributions to any and all of the periodicals which he could reach.

In this way his name became known to the readers of nearly all the American literary papers and magazines of the last half century, and his work appeared in not a few newspapers. He was at one time an editorial writer on The New York Times, but in his later years was crowded out of the race by younger men, and wrote an infinite deal of trash for the cheaper publications.

During his long career he was, like many other writers, beset with a constant desire to get into some other pursuit, caring little for any form of composition excepting poetry. He had considerable mechanical aptitude, and was anxious to become a manufacturer, but having little business ability was never able to get a start in that direction

At one time he sailed as supercargo in a vessel that visited Africa. While there he made the acquaintance of the king of Dahomey, and in a most readable article in The North American Review he described many wonderful and interesting things that he saw in the land of that interesting savage His story of his adventures, however, was so wonderful that it was rejected as a traveler's romance by more than one editor, including his friends the Harpers. They laughed at him, and utterly refused to believe anything he had written about the journey.

It is not perhaps, surprising, in view of the fact that he was all his life writing "pot boilers," that he has left so little behind him, for his name is attached as author to only one book. That is a collection of his poems, and netted him little money but much fame. He procured from the Harpers and from Frank Leslie the copyrights of such poems as they had published, and made an arrangement with the Turners, of Chestnut street, Philadelphia, to publish them in book form. The volume proved remunerative, and some small payments were received by the author, but the Turners were not successful and were speedily sold out by the sheriff. The Petersons bought the book, and adding several other of Watson's poems brought out several editions which sold well. From them, however, Mr. Watson received very little.

During the last few years of his life Mr. Watson was in very straitened circumstances, and for the last six months was a hopeless invalid, though he kept up his work till almost the very last. He lived in a modest boarding house in Bank street with his daughter, who is the only member of his immediate family, excepting two sisters, to survive him.

He was a man of pleasant manners and great culture, but was too retiring and modest in his personality to make a strong impression on any excepting those who knew him well. His sturdy independence, however, was shown in his refusing to accept aid when he might have had it from many of his friends. He repeatedly said that all he wanted was an opportunity to work and to be paid for it. An example of the precariousness of the work by which he lived was the article already mentioned, which was published in The North American Review. He offered this to The Sunday Mercury, for which paper he wrote constantly, and only demanded $3 for it. The Mercury refused it, and The North American Review paid him $40 for it when it was published afterward.

Among the best poems which Mr. Watson wrote, in addition to "Beautiful Snow," were "Ring Down the Curtain, I Cannot Play," "The Sailing of the Yachts," "The Oldest Pauper on the Town," "The Patter of Little Feet," "Farmer Brown" and "The Dying Soldier." DAVID A. CURTIS.

BEAUTIFUL SNOW.

O the snow, the beautiful snow,
Filling the sky and the earth below!
Over the house tops, over the street,
Over the heads of the people you meet,
Dancing,
Flirting,
Skimming along.
Beautiful snow! It can do nothing wrong.
Flying to kiss a fair lady's cheek;
Clinging to lips in a frolicsome freak;
Beautiful snow, from the heavens above,
Pure as an angel and fickle as love!

O the snow, the beautiful snow!
How the flakes gather and laugh as they go!
Whirling about in its maddening fun,
It plays in its glee with every one.
Chasing,
Laughing,
Hurrying by,
It lights up the face and it sparkles the eye;
And even the dogs, with a bark and a bound,
Snap at the crystals that eddy around.
The town is alive and its heart in a glow,
To welcome the coming of beautiful snow.

How the wild crowd go swaying along,
Hailing each other with humor and song!
How the gay sledges like meteors flash by—
Bright for a moment, then lost to the eye!
Ringing,
Swinging,
Dashing they go
Over the crest of the beautiful snow:
Snow so pure when it falls from the sky,
To be trampled in mud by the crowd rushing by;
To be trampled and tracked by the thousands of feet
Till it blends with the horrible filth in the street.

Once I was pure as the snow—but I fell:
Fell, like the snow flakes, from heaven—to hell:
Fell, to be tramped as the filth of the street:
Fell, to be scoffed, to be spit on and beat.
Pleading,
Cursing,
Dreading to die,
Selling my soul to whoever would buy,
Dealing in shame for a morsel of bread,
Hating the living and fearing the dead.
Merciful God! have I fallen so low?
And yet I was once like this beautiful snow!

Once I was fair as the beautiful snow,
With an eye like its crystals, a heart like its glow;
Once I was loved for my innocent grace—
Flattered and sought for the charm of my face.
Father,
Mother,
Sisters all,
God and myself I have lost by my fall.
The veriest wretch that goes shivering by
Will take a wide sweep lest I wander too nigh;
For of all that is on or about me I know
There is nothing that's pure but the beautiful snow

How strange it should be that this beautiful snow
Should fall on a sinner with nowhere to go!
How strange it would be, when the night comes again,
If the snow and the ice struck my desperate brain!
Fainting,
Freezing,
Dying alone,
Too wicked for prayer, too weak for my moan
To be heard in the crash of the crazy town,
Gone mad in its joy at the snow's coming down;
To lie and to die in my terrible woe,
With a bed and a shroud of the beautiful snow!

A Fresh Brakeman.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—On one of the railroads to this city is a specimen of the impudent trainman. Such specimens are to be found on almost all railroads, but this particular man, as a gentlemanly trainman informed me, is such a consummate fool that he does not know he is a fool.

He imagines himself an irresistible masher, and never fails to render himself obnoxious to female passengers if he has half a chance. One of his recent adventures is worth the telling.

A bridal couple sat in the coach. The man had fallen asleep. The trainman admired the comely bride and took a vacant seat near her.

A cinder lodged in the lady's eye. She turned her face toward the waiting masher, unconscious alike of his presence or his purpose, and vigorously winked the cinder filled eye. The masher returned the wink, but she did not observe him. She winked again, and he winked back. He now felt sure of his ground, and said, "Hello, sister: where you going?" The woman for the first time discovered that her winking in her effort to dislodge the cinder had been mistaken by the trainman as a bid for a flirtation. When the situation fully dawned upon her she let fly her long right arm and landed a stinging blow full in the face of the impudent trainman.

The passengers, who had been watching the transaction, were convulsed with laughter, and one Shakespearian student shouted, "Lay on, Macduff, and damned be he who first cries 'Hold, enough!'"

Searching for a Goblet.

Seventy-five years ago the British ship Endymion captured the American frigate President. At Bermuda shortly afterward the inhabitants presented the officers with a goblet. The gift was "to be considered as attached to that or any other ship which might bear the gallant name of Endymion." Now a new Endymion is being completed for the British navy, and an active hunt has been set afoot for the goblet, which disappeared from public view several years ago.

He Lost His Nose for an Hour.

On Wednesday morning, at the Kincaid Manufacturing company's mill near this city, Charlie Ballard, a son of Riley Ballard, had the misfortune to have his nose entirely severed from his face by a fast running belt which had slipped off from a pulley, and the edge striking him on the side of the nose cut entirely through. Dr. J. M. Kelley was summoned to the wounded man's relief as soon as possible and he responded at once.

When he reached the place, which is about a mile out, and had seen the injured man he inquired for the nose, which it seems no one in the excitement caused by the accident had thought of A search was made for the missing member, and it was found in a pile of trash on the floor where it had fallen, was taken and washed in hot water until it became warm and was put back in place, the wound properly dressed, and when done hardly showed that it had ever been severed from the face and is likely to get well. The space of time between the accident and that of placing back the severed member was about an hour.—Griffin (Ga.) News.

A Journey Lasting Nearly Two Years.

In Sarotov an interesting traveler on foot arrived recently. He was a peasant, Nikolay Audukin by name, and over 70 years of age. He had been a serf, and in 1852 his master had accused him of theft, and had caused him to be exiled to Okhotsk, in Eastern Siberia. As the crime of which he had been accused could not be established he was sent off as a "free exile"—that is, he was not kept a prisoner or bound to penal service in the place of his destination. For thirty-eight years he worked in Okhotsk as a tanner, and saved money. Having attained his seventieth year he conceived a desire to return to his native land, and, as he said, "to put away his little bones among his own people when his time is up in this world." But he was still hale and hearty, and traveled all the way from Okhotsk on foot. He was on the road twenty-two months, and had many a narrow escape from encounters with bears and wolves. At his old home he has a large family of children and grandchildren awaiting him with open arms. —St. Petersburg Letter.

Pawnbrokers and Seashore.

"This is one of the busiest seasons for us," said a pawnbroker. "You see, the impecunious young men are now about to go to the seashore, and they leave with us all they can dispense with in order to help defray their expenses while masquerading down there as wealthy young men, and angling for young women with good bank accounts. Just now we have on hand a very large stock of overcoats, ulsters and watches, the advances on which will find their way in short order to the tills of the seashore hotel keepers. Some of these men have been customers of mine for years, and when I see them come in with their bundles I know that the season at the seashore has been opened. When the weather cools up in the fall they will raise the money in some manner, and then come in and redeem their pledges."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The King of Tramps.

Wilson Becker is the name of the young tramp, known in Boston as "Sailor Kid," who recently traveled from Boston to San Francisco and return in twenty-one days, without spending a cent for food or railroad fare. He is but 20 years old, and has won the title of "King of the Tramps" from his adroitness in beating his way. He was backed in his late transcontinental trip by a Boston man in the sum of $500 and won. He now offers to wager this sum that he can girdle the globe on the same conditions in 102 days. He is a born deadbeat and brings the highest talent into his business. He was born in Demerara, and ran away from home at the age of 9 years, traveling to Hong Kong, Honolulu and England, with no capital save the gift with which he was born.—Exchange.

Left the Audience Waiting.

Judge Hughes, the author of "Tom Brown's Schooldays," was delivering a lecture the other evening on "American Humor" at a Cheshire village and delighting his audience immensely. He was so wrapped up in his subject that he was totally oblivious as to the time, and before he had completed the first part he was reminded by the church clock that his train was due in a few minutes. He accordingly picked up his manuscript, umbrella and coat and left the room, while the audience cheered and took it as a mere joke. They expected him to return, but he did not, and the audience dispersed rather ill humoredly. This is characteristic of Judge Hughes.—London Tit Bits.

A Record Breaker.

Comus—I see by the papers that the Philadelphia made over twenty knots an hour when being tested.

Thespis—That's no record. I've beaten that myself.

Comus—Indeed!

Thespis—When coming back to the city this summer I came over thousands and thousands of ties per hour.—Munsey's Weekly.

A pretty sight often seen on St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, is a little boy riding his bicycle with his black and tan dog standing behind him. The dog holds on by resting his front paws on his master's neck, and appears to have no fear, no matter how rapidly they travel. The other day the dog grew weary of the sport before the boy, so without any ado he tucked his head down on the boy's shoulder and went to sleep.

Banker Kennedy, of New York, recently purchased for £70 the original manuscript of the great war song of Scotland, "Scots wha hae." He showed, however, rare magnanimity and offered this invaluable relic to the city of Edinburgh for the trifle he had given for it. The lord provost gladly accepted the offer, and the town council awarded a vote of thanks to Mr. Kennedy.

A DARING ROBBERY

How Inordinate Greed Brought Its Own Punishment.

Clad in his bullet proof coat of mail, the trusty guard of the ice wagon sat in the iron plated turret on the hurricane deck of the vehicle, with his Winchester rifle in his hand, a collection of hand grenades within easy reach, and his belt full of navy revolvers of the largest size. On a little shelf in front of him was a pair of sabers ready for instant use in an emergency requiring hand to hand fighting, and a powerful field glass for detecting an enemy at long range swung on a pivot in such a way as to command a view of the landscape in every direction. The driver of the wagon, as heavily armed as the nature of his duties would permit, sat in a bomb proof inclosure, and guided the horses by means of lines passing through portholes in front, while the athlete who occupied the responsible and dangerous position at the rear of the wagon and delivered the ice to customers was equipped with bottles of vitriol for defensive use, and wore under his outer garments a suit of chain armor that had belonged once to a baseball umpire.

Under the watchful protection of the guard on the roof the wagon had stopped at its regular places, the man in the rear had made several deliveries of ice to customers in perfect safety, and as the driver turned down a wide street in a thickly settled portion of the town, with few persons in sight except children at play, the vigilance of the trio in charge of the ice wagon relaxed and a sense of security stole over them.

Suddenly as they passed an alley a troop of horsemen dashed out of it with a wild yell, half a dozen lassos flew through the air, and before they could recover from their confusion the guard on the roof and the man on the rear step of the wagon were dragged from their posts, thrown to the ground and bound with ropes. This done a part of the gang opened fire with revolvers on the bomb proof casemate where the driver sat, and succeeded in occupying his attention while the others with crowbars and sledge hammers forced open the iron doors in the rear.

The plans of the daring robbers had been laid with care, and in less time than it takes to tell of it they had succeeded in their desperate undertaking, and were on their way out of the town with their booty, a chunk of ice weighing at least ten pounds, carefully wrapped in a blanket.

The knowledge that the news of the robbery would be flashed through the place and telegraphed far and wide, accompanied by offers of large rewards for their capture dead or alive, lent wings to the fleeing villains. They had held up many a train on the plains of Texas and in the rocky fastnesses of Missouri, but had never engaged before in a scheme of plunder on so gigantic a scale, and they rode from the scene of their exploit with the wild haste of men fleeing for their lives.

In a little clearing in the heart of a dense wood, miles and miles from the town they had invaded, these men halted at last.

Turning their jaded animals loose they gathered eagerly about their prize. Unrolling it with the utmost care they feasted their eyes on its glittering outlines, and with hands trembling with excitement they prepared to divide it.

"No cheating!" thundered Broken Nosed Pete, as a gaunt villain with a saw drew it across the block a little to the left of the line he had drawn across it with a dagger.

Hare Lipped Mose sprang to his feet with a terrible oath, knives flashed in the air, derringers were drawn and the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang with the voices of men in angry strife.

High rose the din of conflict. The pitying sun looked down on Goggle Eyed Hank and Grizzly Jake, the Terror of Bloody Gulch, engaged in a fierce combat, while Comanche Dick and Wild Mike rolled over and over on the ground, biting and gouging each other in frantic rage. Dare Devil Sam and One Eyed Jackson emptied their pistols at each other, and then fought at close quarters with brass knuckles and slungshots. In this way the battle had raged for some time without any decisive result, when a frightful, blood curdling yell from one of the combatants caused a suspension of hostilities. He had stopped fighting and was standing in wild dismay over the spot where the captured treasure had lain.

It had vanished.

While they had been fighting over its possession the sun had melted away a fortune!—Chicago Tribune.

Anthracite Coal Waste.

The coal waste commission appointed to consider the question of coal waste in Pennsylvania, consisting of Messrs. J. A. Price, Eckley B. Coxe and P. W. Sheafer, has issued a circular letter asking for suggestions and information as to the best means of diminishing waste in the mining of coal in the future as well as of utilizing the mountains of culm now existing in the anthracite district. The commission consists of three of the best informed and most practical coal operators in the state. It might be supposed that these men could furnish information on the subject instead of asking for it, and so they probably can and will at the right time.

They are well enough informed, however, to realize that in a multitude of counselors there is wisdom, and their appeal to those who as well as themselves have been making a study of this subject is fully justified. The anthracite coal field is now well defined, and it is scarcely probable that any considerable new deposits of this valuable and necessary fuel will be discovered in the United States. Under the present wasteful system of mining by which scarcely more than one-third of the coal is utilized for actual use this supply will be exhausted at furthest in a couple of centuries. It is quite time therefore that some better system should be employed if possible.—Philadelphia Times.

Artificial Teeth Going Up.

"What is all this hubbub about the great advance in the price of artificial teeth?" inquired a reporter of an Auburn dentist. "Well, sir, the fact is the manufacturers are advancing the price on their goods very fast." "Is the advance in your judgment legitimate or is it speculative?" "So far it is entirely legitimate. I have been in this office thirteen years, and during that time nothing has occurred to change the price of teeth 1 per cent., but during the last few months the price of platinum has advanced very rapidly, and as there is no other known metal of which the pins can be made that hold the teeth to the plate it can readily be seen the manufacturers are obliged to advance their prices.

"At present it is difficult to see just where this state of things will lead us. All our platinum is at present mined in Russia and the production is growing less every day while the demand for it is rapidly increasing, and that too in many new industries which have not heretofore used it. I see nothing ahead but the continued advance in artificial teeth for a long time to come. At least this is the advice we are receiving from the wholesale houses every little while." —Lewiston Journal.

Convicted When Innocent.

The case of the man Borras, the victim of wrongful conviction for murder, was brought before the chamber. M. Thevenet, who was minister of justice at the time of the trial, defended his action in the matter. He expressed himself awkwardly when he said that no other criminal but Borras could be found. Nobody was wrong. The fault, if there was any, lay in the code of criminal investigation. M. Thevenet also said that Borras being only pardoned could not demand a new trial, and that in law the heirs of the murdered man Pradis had a right to bring the action in which they have just engaged against poor Borras for £4,000 damages. M. Fallieres, without actually blaming the judges, declared Borras quite innocent, and promised to do what he could in the matter.—Paris Cor. London News.

An Aged Scientist.

Sir George Airy, the oldest of the Englishmen of science, has just entered upon his ninetieth year. Sixty-five years ago he was elected to the Lucasian professorship at the University of Cambridge, having been senior wrangler two years before. The remuneration was nil, or consisted merely of a house, and this circumstance gave the late Mr. Todhunter an opportunity for his mot, "They gave to Airy, nothing—a local habitation and a name." Since that time Airy has been for forty-five years astronomer royal (he resigned in 1881), and has received every honor and distinction open to men of science, including the presidency of the Royal society.—Exchange.

Living in Green Houses.

Two private residences on Clinton avenue, between Fulton and Atlantic avenues, Brooklyn, are a refreshing spectacle in hot weather. They are brownstone front buildings of the ordinary plan, but the bright green foliage of a wisteria vine covers them from roof to basement. The openings at the windows and doors afford light and entrance to the interiors, but every square inch of the original brownstone front is concealed beneath green leaves. There is not another wisteria vine in Brooklyn the growth of which has been so picturesque and perfect.—New York Mail and Express.

Wouldn't Take Pennies.

A passenger on the Tacoma street car line offered five copper cents for his fare. The conductor refused to accept the tender and ejected the passenger. Now the company is called on to stand suit for $2,000 damages.—San Francisco Call.

Novel Ways to Pay Taxes.

A Maine man has paid his taxes by turning seventy-eight crows' heads into the state treasury. In Massachusetts the citizen may work out his taxes on the town roads, or catch seals and collect the bounty of $1 each offered for their tails.

Makes a Better Showing.

"The government was wise in taking the census before the Fourth of July."

"Why?"

"Because the toy cannon had not then reduced the population."—Epoch.

A Londoner accuses Walter Besant of having hypnotized him and having extracted from him in that condition the entire story, word for word, of the novelette, "The Doubts of Dives."

NOT A KICKER.

The Man from Hannibal Had No Objections to Make.

"Beastly weather, isn't it?" observed a man who was hanging to a strap in a crowded North Side car the other day.

"Weather suits me well enough," replied the man spoken to, who was clinging to another strap.

"You're not particular about your weather, I suppose," rejoined the other, slightly nettled.

"Not at all. One kind is as good as another to me."

"Easily suited generally. Just as lief stand up in a car as to sit down, I reckon?"

"Yes. Just as lief."

"Ain't particular about getting your full share of everything that's going perhaps, if you have to kick to get it?"

"I'm not a kicker."

"Don't worry over things when they don't happen to come your way, I calculate?"

"Ain't worrying about anything."

"Haven't made any fuss about the census in your town either, of course?"

"Nary fuss."

"And don't intend to, hey?"

"That's correct. Don't intend to. Don't care a darn about the census."

"Just so—just so," mused the discontented passenger. "Many other men in your town like you?"

"Hundreds of 'em."

"Do you mind telling me where you live?"

"Just as soon tell you as not. I'm from Hannibal, Mo."

"Are there any other men from Hannibal aboard this car?"

"Don't see any."

"Thank heaven!"

And the man who sometimes kicked at things crowded to the other end of the car and put his head out to get some fresh air.—Chicago Tribune.

Changing the Subject.

"Is there such a thing as balm of Gilead?" asked Charley, to keep up the conversation.

"Yes," answered the learned damsel. "It is taken from a species of Balsamodendron."

"Oh, of course—eh—did you see the tennis match yesterday afternoon?"—New York Herald.

Theory and Practice.

Mr. Spriggins—Where's your daughter, Mrs. Wiggins?

Mrs. Wiggins—She's gone to the cooking school. And that reminds me. I must go into the kitchen and get supper, for she'll be as hungry as a bear when she gets home.—New York Weekly.

Taut.

"Are these shoes your best quality?"

"We have only one quality, madame."

"Then why the difference in price? A friend of mine paid six dollars yesterday, and these are only four."

"We sell by quantity, madame."

Quick sale.—Harper's Bazar.

The End of a Tiff.

Charlie—Perhaps you'd like to be skipper of my boat, young woman?

Flo—I'd rather be your first mate, dear.—Chatter.

When She Wears No Sleeve.

Crusty—Beauty! Bah! Don't hunt for beauty when you're looking for a marriageable girl, my boy. Beauty wears her heart upon her sleeve, you know.

Youngblood — Indeed! Then where does she wear it at dress receptions?—Lawrence American.

Financial Item.

Wife—What are you studying so busily these days?

Husband—I am interested in the silver problem.

Wife—So am I. Would you be kind enough to give me half a dollar?—Lowell Citizen.

An Exception.

"I read the other day that Byron was clubfooted," said Cholly. "That just shows that physical infirmities do not conflict with genius."

"No," said his friend, "unless one happens to be a blockhead."—Munsey's Weekly.

Thermometrical.

He—Why do you call your dog Zero? I thought that you named him Tom, after your fiance.

She—I used to, but Tom fell so many degrees in my estimation that I thought Zero the better name.—New York Herald.

At the Garden Gate.

"Oh, George, papa is unchaining the dog."

"It's all right. He used to be my dog. I gave him to the dealer to sell to your papa."—Boston Courier.

Nobody to Blame.

"Did the coroner render a verdict on the horse thief they lynched?"

"Yes. He said the man died of heart failure induced by a broken neck."—Puck.

Natural Enough.

Fond Mother (gazing at the baby)—He looks just like his father, doesn't he?

Careful Nurse—Yes, mum, except the beard and eye glasses.—Munsey's Weekly.

Still Owed Him.

Customer—I notice that Slater is raising a full beard.

Barber—Is that so? I wish he had done it two years ago.—Lowell Citizen.

WRECK ON THE C. AND A

Train 12 Ditched at Espyville at an Early Hour This Morning.

An open switch at Espyville, a station on the C. and A. near here, threw the baggage car, two day coaches and two sleepers from the track, badly smashing them. It is supposed that the switch had been partly closed by some one thinking that he had completely shut it.

The train was in charge of Conductor Burgess and Engineer Quigley who did everything possible for the comfort of their passengers until another train went out from here and brought them to the junction where they could take Erie train 12 and go on east. No one was injured but all received a good jolting. One of the coaches ditched was the through sleeper from Chicago to Columbus.

A wrecking train was sent to the scene of the wreck and is now clearing the track and repairing the damage. All trains on this end of the road were run over the C., H. V. and T. and P., F. W. and via Upper Sandusky. A large crowd from here has been at the scene of the smashup all day, having went out on the wrecking train. Trains were not delayed but a few minutes on account of the wreck.

CALEB MERRITT.

He Dies at His Home in Claridon Township, at an Advanced Age.

Caleb Merritt, a native of Orange county, New York state, died at his home in Claridon township, Thursday evening, in his 81st year. He was among the oldest citizens of Marion county, having been a resident of the county 66 years. He had been sick a good while previous to his death, but during his sickness he had a constant hope of again getting about, notwithstanding his advanced age.

Deceased was a man of the most economical habits, and by his industry and frugality accumulated a very comfortable fortune. His entire life was spent in farming, with an additional turn at sheep raising. His estate includes between three and four hundred acres of land near his late home, about one mile west of Slick's Station. He was the father of eight children. Politically, he was a Republican of long standing.

The funeral of deceased will occur Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. at the house, and the remains will be placed in the Marion cemetery vault.

ARM BROKEN.

A Dangerous Accident to a Young Man South of Town.

A young man named William Tavener, son of Jonah Tavener, residing about five miles south of this city, met with an accident Thursday afternoon which terminated quite luckily considering the perilous position the victim was in for a time. The accident occurred while working with a threshing machine. A belt flew off and while the machine was in motion young Tavener undertook to replace it. In doing so his hand was caught in the belt and his arm drawn in between the belt and the pulley. His wrist and elbow were both broken, inflicting a most painful wound.

His release without the complete loss of the arm and perhaps other serious injuries is considered most fortunate.

Probate Court.

J. B. Riley appointed guardian of Emma L. Lewis.

S. T. Beerbower appointed administrator de bonis non of the estate of Harriet V. Franklin.

S. N. Myers and R. J. Myers, administrators of the estate of Jonathan Myers, filed second and final account.

G. N. Myers, administrator of the estate of Gustav Trapp, filed appraisement of real estate; order to sell at private sale.

LICENSED TO MARRY.

—Citizens of Marion, if you want to use water from the city waterworks, call on Vaughan & Allen. They are prepared to do plumbing as cheap and as perfect as any person or persons living. They guarantee their work and they are able to make their guarantee good. Although they do not tap the mains, the waterworks company has no favorites. They treat all alike This firm can get your tap as soon as it can be procured by anyone. They use the best material and do not want to make a fortune in one season in order that they may migrate to another town. Their interests are here and they will remain here. See them before contracting elsewhere.

—Mrs. Caroline Sontag and daughter, Miss Flora, who had been visiting relatives in this city, have returned to their home in Portsmouth, Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. Lew Sontag and little child, who will remain with them a couple weeks.

—Erie train 1 was over two hours late this morning, being delayed by the meeting of the many excursion trains that road had Thursday. One hundred passenger coaches could have been used if they could have secured them.

—Cardington Independent: The annual reunion of the 96th O. V. I. will be held at Greenwood Lake, Delaware, August 19th and 20th.

—The building formerly occupied by the Normal Vidette is to be used as a store room. A stock of groceries is to be placed therein in the near future.

—Hal. Copeland, Fred Jones and Frank Cockrell returned Thursday evening from the Logan county reservoir, after nearly a week spent in fishing.

—Mrs. A. G. Vega, of Louisville, Ky., stopped off here today while on her way to Williamsport, Pa., and was a guest at the home of her cousin, Fred Issleib.

—A delightful party was given at the home of Miss Emma Nitehardt, about four miles south of the city, Thursday evening. About twenty guests were present from here and abroad. Refreshments were served and all report a most delightful time.

—A most pleasant evening is reported by those who attended the Odd Fellows' banquet Thursday evening. The members were joined in the festivities by the Daughters of Rebekah, and over two hundred persons were seated at the banquet table. Speeches, music and a general social time was enjoyed. The banquet was given as an informal dedication of the newly improved hall.

—Mt. Victory Observer: A Richwood young lady has been brought to grief by answering an advertisement in a matrimonial paper. Miss Imogene Rostte was married to a man named Blake, who claimed to be of English birth and heir to $200,000. They were married on July 7th, and in a few days left for their home in England, but he deserted her in New York City. Thus it is with those who answer advertisements of such nature in papers.

—Findlay Republican: A Findlay Democratic politician who has made a study of the situation estimates the vote of the congressional convention at Carey as follows: Boston G. Young 50; Zugschwert 55; Dunn 50; complimentary votes 18. This gentleman says that he has positive and substantial assurance that Mr. Dunn will get 50 votes. Zuschwert is assured a goodly support from Seneca where Seney will give him substantial aid. He will also get votes in Wyandot and probably a few in Union county. The contest will be practically between the men named with the fear continually that Seney will make himself the compromise candidate.

LaRue.

La Rue is here, dry as powder. Everything parched. Corn about gone up the spout, and no sign of rain. Oats being cut, it is short and will be light. Potatoes a bad failure. Wheat is better than we supposed it would be, but will not average for the four west townships in the county more than fifteen bushels to the acre harvested. Hay will be plenty and of a good quality. Pastures drying up fast. All kinds of grain will sell high within six months is my opinion.

Henry Sharp has made an assignment don't know how his affairs will show up, though I expect he had better have sold out, and divided among his creditors and saved expenses.

The mortgage indebtedness in Montgomery township is greater than I expected; somebody is in debt. When will men learn to live within their income? Before another year passes by failures will increase and a good many will have to use more economy, and be more industrious, and make a better use of time or suffer the legitimate penalty resulting from not doing so. The next twelve months will pinch closer than the last has, and the pressure will be felt generally.

B. F. Waples was out here a few days lately assisting our land appraiser in closing up his matters.

I have rented Isaac Clark about fifty acres of land withio the corporation for the next year for five dollars per year. He has had thirty acres of it for the past two years. I have about sixty acres that was clover sod last year—frozen out last winter—situated near Moon's, north of the railroad, I would rent for a wheat crop. A good chance.

Charley Quigley has bought a farm of 71 acres over in Bowling Green township.

G. W. Myers is suffering from sciattia; walks with crutches, very lame, talks of going to Magnetic Springs. This is the place to go to get relief.

I don't here of much sickness. People had better use a few doses of quinine every two weeks as a preventative, however. Cool nights and hot days will start up chills.

The Scioto is very low, some wells are, too. Not a cloud to be seen, nor a sign of rain, I fear a long dry spell is before us. We have had about a month now.

Methodist quarterly meeting last Sunday The presiding elder was here and the brethren were revived some.

Once in awhile we hear a little prohibition. It is feeble and falling. The Farmers' Alliance, another party trying to spring up, say they are not seeking office.

Foster can win for congress in this district if he will make the race, he is fully competent for the place and the masses' friend.

La Rue is a little dull. People are threshing wheat and selling at 80 cents now. If the corn crop fails badly it will bring a dollar before long.

July 29. C.

Caledonia.

Another week of fine weather has been added. Growing crops are doing finely, and wheat threshing was never better.

Ferd Ganshorn and Wm Lee accompanied the Beech ball club to Ashley Saturday, only to be defeated 11 to 14.

M. V Harrison shipped three loads of cattle Saturday at considerable loss, one load of hogs Monday doing him little good. Frank Hill shipped one load of cattle, reaching within $55 of an offer here on track Martin Koch also shipped a car of stock

Elmer Stanley has rented the Hanley House and taken possession. We wish the landlord and land aly a pleasant and profitable season in their new enterprise. Mr. Clark will return to Richwood a wiser man.

The Eureka mill is running full time now. The old miller, H Ramer, doing the night work.

August 1. CLIP.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Rosa Bonheur is 67 years of age and her brush is still busy. For her last picture she received $10,000.

Mme. Patti is to receive a casket and the freedom of Swansea, Wales, at the National Eisteddfodd to be held next year.

Providence, R. I., has a female pastor in the person of Mrs. Anna Garlan Spencer, who has charge of the Bell Street church.

Mrs Haymarker, a native of Bombay, after receiving a medical education in Philadelphia is about to return to her own people as a missionary.

The Southern Pacific ocean has a monopolist in the person of Mrs. Emma Forsythe, a rich widow, who owns a goodly part of the island of New Britain. Mrs Forsythe goes by the name of the White Queen.

One of the pretty California heiresses is Miss Grace McDonough, who will inherit a fortune of $3,000,000 from her mother. She is a tall, stately girl, with a haughty manner, but a sweet and attractive face.

It is related that the late Marchioness of Ely was much admired in her youth by Cavour, who would have married her had she been willing to leave the British court and her intimate friend, Queen Victoria.

Miss L. Ackroyd, of Newnham college, England, has been nominated to occupy the university table at the laboratory of the Marine Biological association at Plymouth for one month during the year 1890.

Miss Elizabeth Peabody, whose charities and benevolence have made her so distinguished throughout New England, is now 87 years old. She is in comparatively good health, but is waiting quietly for the end.

Mme Lillian Nardica, the gifted musician, uses up a piano and a gallon of scented water every month. She is a hard worker, a home lover and an anti-athlete, never walking any further than the carriage step.

By her will the late Mrs. Emily Pfeiffer, the well known English poet, bequeathes, with the exception of a few legacies, the whole of her personal estate of £63,000 to charitable and educational establishments for women.

The latest description of Margaret Deland, the Boston writer, represents her as a slender young woman plunging through the snow drifts of Beacon street with a market basket on her arm and her big dog at her side

Mrs. M. Edith Howcott, of New Orleans, probably owns more real estate than any other southern woman. She has in her own right over 50,000 acres of selected timber lands in Louisiana and Mississippi, and is still buying.

Bertha von Hillern is still an ardent pedestrian, though most of her time is now devoted to work in her studio in the Virginia mountains. She is a devout Catholic, and frequently walks eleven miles to church and back again.

Frances Power Cobbe, the well known English writer, was born in 1822; she writes frequently for the reviews and magazines on social, ethical and religious subjects, and is also a prominent leader of the anti-vivisection movement in England.

Portugal has a female bull fighter. Her name is Clotilde Mejstrik. She has practiced for bull fighting only since last April 1, yet is wonderfully expert in the arena. At her debut in Oporto she killed two bulls, and a week later in Lisbon she killed two more.

Mrs Dorothy Stanley's last act as an unmarried artist was the sale of her picture of "Street Arabs at Play" to a great soap selling firm for a pictorial advertisement. She expressed her willingness that the picture should be used for that purpose if it were not changed in any manner.

Miss Alita Proctor Otis, the editor of Saturday Review, has her bread-and-butter day love for dolls. Mrs. Senator Platt is another devotee of the doll, and in one corner of her Fifth Avenue hotel parlor is a small stand, where a group of talking doll babies sit with staring eyes and parted lips.

The Duchess of Cleveland is a first rate artist. She is the owner of a house in Grosvenor place, London, which contains a great many beautiful paintings which were the work of the proprietress. These include a most charming portrait of the late Duchess of Westminster in the lovely days of her early youth.

Helen Mathers, the author of "Cherry Ripe" and other successful novels, has never written anonymously, or employed her pen in journalistic work of any kind, no inducement will make her take up her pen when she is not in the mood, yet she once wrote two three volume novels in six months and made $10,000 out of them.

ROYAL FLUSHES.

The suttan is described as a thin, pale, black haired man with a sharp eye. He is 48 years old

Queen Victoria has given $250 to a fund raised for the purpose of putting a steamer on the Victoria Nyanza.

The king of Belgium requested the honor of contributing best man for Stanley's wedding, and named Comte Daroche for that honor.

Emperor William has declared that the next birthday of Count Von Moltke shall be kept as a national holiday The famous strategist was born Oct. 26, 1800, at Parchim Mecklenburg.

The Princess Dolgorouki is one of the most accomplished amateur violin players in Europe. She is also pretty, having a fair complexion, delicate features and the refinement of the best Slav type. She dresses picturesquely.

The prince of Schaumburg Lippe, the father of the Emperor William's intended brother-in law, is one of the richest of the German sovereigns. He possesses a very large fortune and vast estates in Bohemia, Hungary and Upper Austria, and is the owner of nearly the whole of his principality, which lies between Cologne and Berlin, and it contains an area of nine German square miles

AMERICAN INDIAN STATISTICS.

RAILWAY BRIEFS.

There were 1,900 miles of track built in the United States up to July 1, 1890, as compared with 1,490 miles the first half of 1889.

The Frisco line boasts of a tramp who has passed the time for four years "counting the ties" on that road He is known as "the Senator."

The first practical step in the erection of the great Pan-American railroad was taken when ground was broken recently near Brownsville, Tex., for the Corpus Christi and South American railroad.

A southern newspaper says that an oak tie coated with creosote will last from eighteen to twenty-six years. The fact remains, however, that the average life of wooden cross ties is only about eight years

According to the annual report of the commissioner of labor, Carroll D Wright, the number of employes on all the railroads of the country amount to 760,000 There are 1,518 different railroad corporations

A special train on the Northern railroad of France recently ran from Paris to Cahas, 184.14 miles, in three hours and fifty minutes, an average of forty-eight miles per hour At times the speed was seventy-one miles per hour

The New York Central recently paid to a New York insurance company a premium of $40,000 on total insurance of property in and near New York of $4,365,000 This is said to have been the largest single premium ever paid

Two gold spikes were driven recently in the last two rails of the Lehigh Valley railroad connection between the Lehigh and Schuylkill valleys at Rennlont, West Penn township, Schuylkill county, Pa. This line will bring Pottsville within four hours journey of New York.

A fireman says: "I know a little kink about lighting a headlight on stormy and windy nights. Take an old train order and curl it around on top of the lamp wick so as to leave a portion of it sticking up, and by dropping a lighted match down the chimney it will ignite and the head light is lit."

The Rochester (N. Y.) Post-Express says that Thomas Connors, of Elmira, track inspector of the Rochester division of the Erie, is one of the veterans of New York state. He began railroading in 1849 on the Delaware division of the Erie, and has since 1852 been foreman and track inspector on the Rochester division.

On the Central Pacific railroad the cylinders of the locomotives have been utilized to increase the supply of air to the brakes. This is accomplished by reversing the locomotive when it is going ahead, thus causing the cylinders to act as air compressors, driving large volumes of air into the train pipes and reservoirs.

THE LATEST IN JEWELRY.

An odd conception for cuff links is a gold barrel with platinum hoops.

A pearl capped pin piercing a horn of plenty from which diamonds and rubies are issuing is a scarf pin of rare beauty.

A platinum fleur-de lis in the center of a disk of gold flower work forms the pretty design of a pair of cuff buttons.

A lace pin that occupies a prominent position simulates in silver and enamel a bunch of elderberries and yellow daisies.

A two karat diamond shows to good advantage in a platinum mounting strung on a frail chain from a bracelet of twisted gold.

Parisian jewelers are having a brisk demand for a crescent shaped hairpin of gold having several stars containing gems clinging to the sides.

A diminutive street lamp post of gold, showing two sides, in each of which a diamond, a ruby and a sapphire are mounted, is an attractive scarf pin.

Quite an oddity in rings is one simulating the bit of a horse's bridle, curved in such a manner that the side levers formed the setting for an emerald.

Two crossed palm leaf fans, represented in yellow gold and showing the impudent face of a moonstone cherub peering between, constitute an artistic novelty in lace pins.

A diminutive rowboat of gold, laden to the guards with enameled violets and forget-me-nots, in which several diamonds are shown, was the lace pin worn by a seaside belle recently.

A presentation watch of recent make has the case elaborately decorated with a diamond and ruby pointer gazing at a bevy of wild ducks overhead. The latter are shown in inlaid enamel of various colors.

A pair of earrings recently produced at the request of an enthusiastic yachtswoman represented the row locks of a small boat A diamond of great brilliancy was mounted in the crescent shaped part of each ornament.—Jewelers' Weekly.

WHERE THE DAY IS LONGEST.

At Spitzbergen the longest day is 3½ months.

At Stockholm, Sweden, it is 18½ hours in length.

At London, England, and Bremen, Prussia, the longest day has 16½ hours

At Hamburg, in Germany, and Dantzig, in Prussia, the longest day has 17 hours.

At New York the longest day is about 15 hours, and at Montreal, Canada, it is 16 hours

At Wardbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 22 without interruption

At St. Petersburg, Russia, and Tobolsk, Siberia, the longest day is 19 hours and the shortest 5 hours

At Tornea, Finland, June 21 brings a day nearly 22 hours long, and Christmas one less than 3 hours in length.—New York Morning Journal

Delicate persons, and all whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic, purging medicine, does not weaken or deplete the system as other purgatives do, but acts gently. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system.

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, of Ga., says. "Simmons Liver Regulator is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauvight, N. J.

WHO WROTE THE VERSES?

CONTROVERSY REGARDING "BEAUTIFUL SNOW" REOPENED.

Sketch of the Life of James W. Watson, Who Died Recently in New York, and Whose Claims Seem to Have Had the Best Authority.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, July 28.—It has happened to many men who have worked for a long lifetime patiently and well that they have achieved fame by some single piece of work that seems by comparison no better than many other things they may have done. Such misfortune as this seems especially to fall to literary men, and one of the most conspicuous recent examples was James W. Watson, who died only the other day in this city. He had been for fifty years a writer, and by no means an unsuccessful one as the business goes; yet of all his writings only one poem is fairly to be called famous, and curiously enough the authorship of that one led to one of the bitterest controversies in the histoy of American literature.

No reader of the present generation can be ignorant of the dispute that lasted for years over the question as to who really wrote "Beautiful Snow." It was originally published in Harper's Weekly, in November, 1858. At the time of its publication the Harpers were not in the habit of publishing the signatures of their contributors, and the poem appeared anonymously. It caught the popular favor, and has become one of the best known poems of American authorship, being included in various collections, such as school readers and books of recitations. It is hard to tell just why it became popular, for it is not, from a literary standpoint, entitled to great praise, but something in its simple directness made it a success.

After a time several persons claimed to have written it, and for a time there was great doubt as to who the real author was, but it was at length acknowledged generally that Mr. Watson was entitled to the credit. William Cullen Bryant included the poem in his famous collection and ascribed its authorship to Watson, and that question may be fairly considered settled.

In addition to Mr. Bryant's authority Horace Greeley lent the force of his name to the assertion that Watson was the real author, and the Harpers declared positively that he had written the poem. The elder Harpers, it may be mentioned, were warm friends of Mr. Watson as long as they lived.

I see that in a recent issue of The New York World Col. William Allen Silloway claims that his name was given as the author of the poem in Bryant's book, but this is not true. Col. Silloway, who is a printer by occupation, and lives in West Washington place, says that he wrote the poem in 1850 and sent it to Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney, and that it was first published in 1854 in Maria Louise Hankins' paper. A portrait painter named McMasters, of New York, Elizabeth Akers, Dora Thorne, Henry W. Faxon and others are among the claimants to authorship of the verses.

Mr. Watson was born in New York city in 1822. His father, Mr. Alexander Watson, was an Englishman by birth, and was at one time a prosperous merchant. Before his son reached manhood, however, reverses came, and the boy was obliged to look out for himself. He had a natural aptitude for the engraver's art, and learned it, only to leave it afterward for the less reliable but more fascinating art of authorship.

He began work as a journalist on The New York Herald on the day that James Gordon Bennett the younger was born, which was just about fifty years ago. Continuing for some time to work in The Herald office, he gradually became known as a graceful versifier and story writer, and up to the time of his last illness he was a frequent contributor to a great number of publications. At one time, for some twelve or fourteen years, he was under contract to write four continued stories a year for Saturday Night, each story to be over sixty columns in length. For this he received an income of $4,000 a year and lived comfortably. The work, however, was not congenial to him, and after the time mentioned he felt unable to continue under the strain. He therefore resigned his place, and from that time onward supported himself all too poorly by the sale of occasional contributions to any and all of the periodicals which he could reach.

In this way his name became known to the readers of nearly all the American literary papers and magazines of the last half century, and his work appeared in not a few newspapers. He was at one time an editorial writer on The New York Times, but in his later years was crowded out of the race by younger men, and wrote an infinite deal of trash for the cheaper publications.

During his long career he was, like many other writers, beset with a constant desire to get into some other pursuit, caring little for any form of composition excepting poetry. He had considerable mechanical aptitude, and was anxious to become a manufacturer, but having little business ability was never able to get a start in that direction.

At one time he sailed as supercargo in a vessel that visited Africa. While there he made the acquaintance of the king of Dahomey, and in a most readable article in The North American Review he described many wonderful and interesting things that he saw in the land of that interesting savage. His story of his adventures, however, was so wonderful that it was rejected as a traveler's romance by more than one editor, including his friends the Harpers. They laughed at him, and utterly refused to believe anything he had written about the journey.

It is not perhaps surprising, in view of the fact that he was all his life writing "pot boilers," that he has left so little behind him, for his name is attached as author to only one book. That is a collection of his poems, and netted him little money but much fame. He procured from the Harpers and from Frank Leslie the copyrights of such poems as they had published, and made an arrangement with the Turners, of Chestnut street, Philadelphia, to publish them in book form. The volume proved remunerative, and some small payments were received by the author, but the Turners were not successful and were speedily sold out by the sheriff. The Petersons bought the book, and adding several other of Watson's poems brought out several editions which sold well. From them, however, Mr. Watson received very little.

During the last few years of his life Mr. Watson was in very straitened circumstances, and for the last six months was a hopeless invalid, though he kept up his work till almost the very last. He lived in a modest boarding house in Bank street with his daughter, who is the only member of his immediate family, excepting two sisters, to survive him.

He was a man of pleasant manners and great culture, but was too retiring and modest in his personality to make a strong impression on any excepting those who knew him well. His sturdy independence, however, was shown in his refusing to accept aid when he might have had it from many of his friends. He repeatedly said that all he wanted was an opportunity to work and to be paid for it. An example of the precariousness of the work by which he lived was the article already mentioned, which was published in The North American Review. He offered this to The Sunday Mercury, for which paper he wrote constantly, and only demanded $3 for it. The Mercury refused it, and The North American Review paid him $40 for it when it was published afterward.

Among the best poems which Mr. Watson wrote, in addition to "Beautiful Snow," were "Ring Down the Curtain, I Cannot Play," "The Sailing of the Yachts," "The Oldest Pauper on the Town," "The Patter of Little Feet," "Farmer Brown" and "The Dying Soldier."

DAVID A. CURTIS.

BEAUTIFUL SNOW.

O the snow, the beautiful snow,
Filling the sky and the earth below!
Over the house tops, over the street,
Over the heads of the people you meet,
Dancing,
Flirting,
Skimming along.
Beautiful snow! It can do nothing wrong.
Flying to kiss a fair lady's cheek;
Clinging to lips in a frolicsome freak;
Beautiful snow, from the heavens above,
Pure as an angel and fickle as love!

O the snow, the beautiful snow!
How the flakes gather and laugh as they go!
Whirling about in its maddening fun,
It plays in its glee with every one.
Chasing,
Laughing,
Hurrying by,
It lights up the face and it sparkles the eye;
And even the dogs, with a bark and a bound,
Snap at the crystals that eddy around.
The town is alive and its heart in a glow,
To welcome the coming of beautiful snow.

How the wild crowd go swaying along,
Hailing each other with humor and song!
How the gay sledges like meteors flash by—
Bright for a moment, then lost to the eye!
Ringing,
Swinging,
Dashing they go
Over the crest of the beautiful snow:
Snow so pure when it falls from the sky,
To be trampled in mud by the crowd rushing by;
To be trampled and tracked by the thousands of feet
Till it blends with the horrible filth in the street.

Once I was pure as the snow—but I fell:
Fell, like the snow flakes, from heaven—to hell:
Fell, to be trampled as the filth of the street:
Fell, to be scoffed, to be spit on and beat.
Pleading,
Cursing,
Dreading to die,
Selling my soul to whoever would buy,
Dealing in shame for a morsel of bread,
Hating the living and fearing the dead.
Merciful God! have I fallen so low?
And yet I was once like this beautiful snow!

Once I was fair as the beautiful snow,
With an eye like its crystals, a heart like its glow;
Once I was loved for my innocent grace—
Flattered and sought for the charm of my face.
Father,
Mother,
Sisters all,
God and myself I have lost by my fall.
The veriest wretch that goes shivering by
Will take a wide sweep lest I wander too nigh;
For of all that is on or about me I know
There is nothing that's pure but the beautiful snow.

How strange it should be that this beautiful snow
Should fall on a sinner with nowhere to go!
How strange it would be, when the night comes again,
If the snow and the ice struck my desperate brain!
Fainting,
Freezing,
Dying alone,
Too wicked for prayer, too weak for my moan
To be heard in the crash of the crazy town,
Gone mad in its joy at the snow's coming down;
To lie and to die in my terrible woe,
With a bed and a shroud of the beautiful snow!

A Fresh Brakeman.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—On one of the railroads to this city is a specimen of the impudent trainman. Such specimens are to be found on almost all railroads, but this particular man, as a gentlemanly trainman informed me, is such a consummate fool that he does not know he is a fool.

He imagines himself an irresistible masher, and never fails to render himself obnoxious to female passengers if he has half a chance. One of his recent adventures is worth the telling.

A bridal couple sat in the coach. The man had fallen asleep. The trainman admired the comely bride and took a vacant seat near her.

A cinder lodged in the lady's eye. She turned her face toward the waiting masher, unconscious alike of his presence or his purpose, and vigorously winked the cinder filled eye. The masher returned the wink, but she did not observe him. She winked again, and he winked back. He now felt sure of his ground, and said, "Hello, sister: where you going?" The woman for the first time discovered that her winking in her effort to dislodge the cinder had been mistaken by the trainman as a bid for a flirtation. When the situation fully dawned upon her she let fly her long right arm and landed a stinging blow full in the face of the impudent trainman.

The passengers, who had been watching the transaction, were convulsed with laughter, and one Shakespearian student shouted, "Lay on, Macduff, and damned be he who first cries 'Hold, enough!'"

Searching for a Goblet.

Seventy-five years ago the British ship Endymion captured the American frigate President. At Bermuda shortly afterward the inhabitants presented the officers with a goblet. The gift was "to be considered as attached to that or any other ship which might bear the gallant name of Endymion." Now a new Endymion is being completed for the British navy, and an active hunt has been set afoot for the goblet, which disappeared from public view several years ago.

He Lost His Nose for an Hour.

On Wednesday morning, at the Kincaid Manufacturing company's mill near this city, Charlie Ballard, a son of Riley Ballard, had the misfortune to have his nose entirely severed from his face by a fast running belt which had slipped off from a pulley, and the edge striking him on the side of the nose cut entirely through. Dr. J. M. Kelley was summoned to the wounded man's relief as soon as possible and he responded at once.

When he reached the place, which is about a mile out, and had seen the injured man he inquired for the nose, which it seems no one in the excitement caused by the accident had thought of. A search was made for the missing member, and it was found in a pile of trash on the floor where it had fallen, was taken and washed in hot water until it became warm and was put back in place, the wound properly dressed, and when done hardly showed that it had ever been severed from the face and is likely to get well. The space of time between the accident and that of placing back the severed member was about an hour.—Griffin (Ga.) News.

A Journey Lasting Nearly Two Years.

In Sarotov an interesting traveler on foot arrived recently. He was a peasant, Nikolay Audukin by name, and over 70 years of age. He had been a serf, and in 1852 his master had accused him of theft, and had caused him to be exiled to Okhotsk, in Eastern Siberia. As the crime of which he had been accused could not be established he was sent off as a "free exile"—that is, he was not kept a prisoner or bound to penal service in the place of his destination. For thirty-eight years he worked in Okhotsk as a tanner, and saved money. Having attained his seventieth year he conceived a desire to return to his native land, and, as he said, "to put away his little bones among his own people when his time is up in this world." But he was still hale and hearty, and traveled all the way from Okhotsk on foot. He was on the road twenty-two months, and had many a narrow escape from encounters with bears and wolves. At his old home he has a large family of children and grandchildren awaiting him with open arms.—St. Petersburg Letter.

Pawnbrokers and Seashore.

"This is one of the busiest seasons for us," said a pawnbroker. "You see, the impecunious young men are now about to go to the seashore, and they leave with us all they can dispense with in order to help defray their expenses while masquerading down there as wealthy young men, and angling for young women with good bank accounts. Just now we have on hand a very large stock of overcoats, ulsters and watches, the advances on which will find their way in short order to the tills of the seashore hotel keepers. Some of these men have been customers of mine for years, and when I see them come in with their bundles I know that the season at the seashore has been opened. When the weather cools up in the fall they will raise the money in some manner, and then come in and redeem their pledges."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The King of Tramps.

Wilson Becker is the name of the young tramp, known in Boston as "Sailor Kid," who recently traveled from Boston to San Francisco and return in twenty-one days, without spending a cent for food or railroad fare. He is but 20 years old, and has won the title of "King of the Tramps" from his adroitness in beating his way. He was backed in his late transcontinental trip by a Boston man in the sum of $500 and won. He now offers to wager this sum that he can girdle the globe on the same conditions in 102 days. He is a born deadbeat and brings the highest talent into his business. He was born in Demerara, and ran away from home at the age of 9 years, traveling to Hong Kong, Honolulu and England, with no capital save the gift with which he was born.—Exchange.

Left the Audience Waiting.

Judge Hughes, the author of "Tom Brown's Schooldays," was delivering a lecture the other evening on "American Humor" at a Cheshire village and delighting his audience immensely. He was so wrapped up in his subject that he was totally oblivious as to the time, and before he had completed the first part he was reminded by the church clock that his train was due in a few minutes. He accordingly picked up his manuscript, umbrella and coat and left the room, while the audience cheered and took it as a mere joke. They expected him to return, but he did not, and the audience dispersed rather ill humoredly. This is characteristic of Judge Hughes.—London Tit Bits.

A Record Breaker.

Comus—I see by the papers that the Philadelphia made over twenty knots an hour when being tested.

Thespis—That's no record. I've beaten that myself.

Comus—Indeed!

Thespis—When coming back to the city this summer I came over thousands and thousands of ties per hour.—Munsey's Weekly.

A pretty sight often seen on St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, is a little boy riding his bicycle with his black and tan dog standing behind him. The dog holds on by resting his front paws on his master's neck, and appears to have no fear, no matter how rapidly they travel. The other day the dog grew weary of the sport before the boy, so without any ado he tucked his head down on the boy's shoulder and went to sleep.

Banker Kennedy, of New York, recently purchased for £70 the original manuscript of the great war song of Scotland, "Scots wha hae." He showed, however, rare magnanimity and offered this invaluable relic to the city of Edinburgh for the trifle he had given for it. The lord provost gladly accepted the offer, and the town council awarded a vote of thanks to Mr. Kennedy.

A DARING ROBBERY

How Inordinate Greed Brought Its Own Punishment.

Clad in his bullet proof coat of mail, the trusty guard of the ice wagon sat in the iron plated turret on the hurricane deck of the vehicle, with his Winchester rifle in his hand, a collection of hand grenades within easy reach, and his belt full of navy revolvers of the largest size. On a little shelf in front of him was a pair of sabers ready for instant use in an emergency requiring hand to hand fighting, and a powerful field glass for detecting an enemy at long range swung on a pivot in such a way as to command a view of the landscape in every direction. The driver of the wagon, as heavily armed as the nature of his duties would permit, sat in a bomb proof inclosure, and guided the horses by means of lines passing through portholes in front, while the athlete who occupied the responsible and dangerous position at the rear of the wagon and delivered the ice to customers was equipped with bottles of vitriol for defensive use, and wore under his outer garments a suit of chain armor that had belonged once to a baseball umpire.

Under the watchful protection of the guard on the roof the wagon had stopped at its regular places, the man in the rear had made several deliveries of ice to customers in perfect safety, and as the driver turned down a wide street in a thickly settled portion of the town, with few persons in sight except children at play, the vigilance of the trio in charge of the ice wagon relaxed and a sense of security stole over them.

Suddenly as they passed an alley a troop of horsemen dashed out of it with a wild yell, half a dozen lassos flew through the air, and before they could recover from their confusion the guard on the roof and the man on the rear step of the wagon were dragged from their posts, thrown to the ground and bound with ropes. This done a part of the gang opened fire with revolvers on the bomb proof casemate where the driver sat, and succeeded in occupying his attention while the others with crowbars and sledge hammers forced open the iron doors in the rear.

The plans of the daring robbers had been laid with care, and in less time than it takes to tell of it they had succeeded in their desperate undertaking, and were on their way out of the town with their booty, a chunk of ice weighing at least ten pounds, carefully wrapped in a blanket.

The knowledge that the news of the robbery would be flashed through the place and telegraphed far and wide, accompanied by offers of large rewards for their capture dead or alive, lent wings to the fleeing villains. They had held up many a train on the plains of Texas and in the rocky fastnesses of Missouri, but had never engaged before in a scheme of plunder on so gigantic a scale, and they rode from the scene of their exploit with the wild haste of men fleeing for their lives.

In a little clearing in the heart of a dense wood, miles and miles from the town they had invaded, these men halted at last.

Turning their jaded animals loose they gathered eagerly about their prize. Unrolling it with the utmost care they feasted their eyes on its glittering outlines, and with hands trembling with excitement they prepared to divide it.

"No cheating!" thundered Broken Nosed Pete, as a gaunt villain with a saw drew it across the block a little to the left of the line he had drawn across it with a dagger.

Hare Lipped Mose sprang to his feet with a terrible oath, knives flashed in the air, derringers were drawn and the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang with the voices of men in angry strife.

High rose the din of conflict. The pitying sun looked down on Goggle Eyed Hank and Grizzly Jake, the Terror of Bloody Gulch, engaged in a fierce combat, while Comanche Dick and Wild Mike rolled over and over on the ground, biting and gouging each other in frantic rage. Dare Devil Sam and One Eyed Jackson emptied their pistols at each other, and then fought at close quarters with brass knuckles and slungshots. In this way the battle had raged for some time without any decisive result, when a frightful, blood curdling yell from one of the combatants caused a suspension of hostilities. He had stopped fighting and was standing in wild dismay over the spot where the captured treasure had lain.

It had vanished.

While they had been fighting over its possession the sun had melted away a fortune!—Chicago Tribune.

A Practical Memento.

Sir James—And were you in Rome?

American Lady—I guess not. (To her daughter) Say, Bella, did we visit Rome?

Fair Daughter—Why, ma, certainly! Don't you remember? It was in Rome we bought the lisle thread stockings!

American lady is convinced.—Punch.

Had Been Careful.

Guest—I believe I see several flies in this soup, waiter.

Waiter (in surprise)—You must be mistaken, sir. I was very careful to take them all out before I brought it in.—Detroit Free Press.

No Pretty Ones Wanted.

Applicant—I understood you wanted a cook?

Madame—Yes; I want a plain cook.

Applicant—It's a plain cook, is it? Is your husband a little bit foxy?—Lowell Citizen.

A Dearth of Topics.

Fannie—I wonder why Mr. Simpson is always talking about himself.

Kate—Because he doesn't know any sensible thing to talk about—Washington Star.

Seldom.

Waiter—How do you have your steak?

Tramp—Rare!—Lowell Citizen.

More Than Punished.

"What is the charge against this prisoner?"

"He's a thief, your honor," said the policeman.

"What did he steal?"

"He took me picture widout me knowin' it."

"The prisoner has the sympathy of the court—discharged."—Puck.

Anthracite Coal Waste.

The coal waste commission appointed to consider the question of coal waste in Pennsylvania, consisting of Messrs. J. A. Price, Eckley B. Coxe and P. W. Sheafer, has issued a circular letter asking for suggestions and information as to the best means of diminishing waste in the mining of coal in the future as well as of utilizing the mountains of culm now existing in the anthracite district. The commission consists of three of the best informed and most practical coal operators in the state. It might be supposed that these men could furnish information on the subject instead of asking for it, and so they probably can and will at the right time.

They are well enough informed, however, to realize that in a multitude of counselors there is wisdom, and their appeal to those who as well as themselves have been making a study of this subject is fully justified. The anthracite coal field is now well defined, and it is scarcely probable that any considerable new deposits of this valuable and necessary fuel will be discovered in the United States. Under the present wasteful system of mining by which scarcely more than one-third of the coal is utilized for actual use this supply will be exhausted at furthest in a couple of centuries. It is quite time therefore that some better system should be employed if possible.—Philadelphia Times.

Artificial Teeth Going Up.

"What is all this hubbub about the great advance in the price of artificial teeth?" inquired a reporter of an Auburn dentist. "Well, sir, the fact is the manufacturers are advancing the price on their goods very fast." "Is the advance in your judgment legitimate or is it speculative?" "So far it is entirely legitimate. I have been in this office thirteen years, and during that time nothing has occurred to change the price of teeth 1 per cent., but during the last few months the price of platinum has advanced very rapidly, and as there is no other known metal of which the pins can be made that hold the teeth to the plate it can readily be seen the manufacturers are obliged to advance their prices.

"At present it is difficult to see just where this state of things will lead us. All our platinum is at present mined in Russia and the production is growing less every day while the demand for it is rapidly increasing, and that too in many new industries which have not heretofore used it. I see nothing ahead but the continued advance in artificial teeth for a long time to come. At least this is the advice we are receiving from the wholesale houses every little while."—Lewiston Journal.

Convicted When Innocent.

The case of the man Borras, the victim of wrongful conviction for murder, was brought before the chamber. M. Thevenet, who was minister of justice at the time of the trial, defended his action in the matter. He expressed himself awkwardly when he said that no other criminal but Borras could be found. Nobody was wrong. The fault, if there was any, lay in the code of criminal investigation. M. Thevenet also said that Borras being only pardoned could not demand a new trial, and that in law the heirs of the murdered man Pradis had a right to bring the action in which they have just engaged against poor Borras for £4,000 damages. M. Fallieres, without actually blaming the judges, declared Borras quite innocent, and promised to do what he could in the matter.—Paris Cor. London News.

An Aged Scientist.

Sir George Airy, the oldest of the Englishmen of science, has just entered upon his ninetieth year. Sixty-five years ago he was elected to the Lucasian professorship at the University of Cambridge, having been senior wrangler two years before. The remuneration was nil, or consisted merely of a house, and this circumstance gave the late Mr. Todhunter an opportunity for his mot, "They gave to Airy, nothing—a local habitation and a name." Since that time Airy has been for forty-five years astronomer royal (he resigned in 1881), and has received every honor and distinction open to men of science, including the presidency of the Royal society.—Exchange.

Living in Green Houses.

Two private residences on Clinton avenue, between Fulton and Atlantic avenues, Brooklyn, are a refreshing spectacle in hot weather. They are brownstone front buildings of the ordinary plan, but the bright green foliage of a wisteria vine covers them from roof to basement. The openings at the windows and doors afford light and entrance to the interiors, but every square inch of the original brownstone front is concealed beneath green leaves. There is not another wisteria vine in Brooklyn the growth of which has been so picturesque and perfect.—New York Mail and Express.

Wouldn't Take Pennies.

A passenger on the Tacoma street car line offered five copper cents for his fare. The conductor refused to accept the tender and ejected the passenger. Now the company is called on to stand suit for $2,000 damages.—San Francisco Call.

Novel Ways to Pay Taxes.

A Maine man has paid his taxes by turning seventy-eight crows' heads into the state treasury. In Massachusetts the citizen may work out his taxes on the town roads, or catch seals and collect the bounty of $1 each offered for their tails.

Makes a Better Showing.

"The government was wise in taking the census before the Fourth of July."

"Why?"

"Because the toy cannon had not then reduced the population."—Epoch.

A Londoner accuses Walter Besant of having hypnotized him and having extracted from him in that condition the entire story, word for word, of the novelette, "The Doubts of Dives."

NOT A KICKER.

The Man from Hannibal Had No Objections to Make.

"Beastly weather, isn't it?" observed a man who was hanging to a strap in a crowded North Side car the other day.

"Weather suits me well enough," replied the man spoken to, who was clinging to another strap.

"You're not particular about your weather, I suppose," rejoined the other, slightly nettled.

"Not at all. One kind is as good as another to me."

"Easily suited generally. Just as lief stand up in a car as to sit down, I reckon?"

"Yes. Just as lief."

"Ain't particular about getting your full share of everything that's going perhaps, if you have to kick to get it?"

"I'm not a kicker."

"Don't worry over things when they don't happen to come your way, I calculate?"

"Ain't worrying about anything."

"Haven't made any fuss about the census in your town either, of course?"

"Nary fuss."

"And don't intend to, hey?"

"That's correct. Don't intend to. Don't care a darn about the census."

"Just so—just so," mused the discontented passenger. "Many other men in your town like you?"

"Hundreds of 'em."

"Do you mind telling me where you live?"

"Just as soon tell you as not. I'm from Hannibal, Mo."

"Are there any other men from Hannibal aboard this car?"

"Don't see any."

"Thank heaven!"

And the man who sometimes kicked at things crowded to the other end of the car and put his head out to get some fresh air.—Chicago Tribune.

Changing the Subject.

"Is there such a thing as balm of Gilead?" asked Charley, to keep up the conversation.

"Yes," answered the learned damsel. "It is taken from a species of Balsamodendron."

"Oh, of course—eh—did you see the tennis match yesterday afternoon?"—New York Herald.

Theory and Practice.

Mr. Spriggins—Where's your daughter, Mrs. Wiggins?

Mrs. Wiggins—She's gone to the cooking school. And that reminds me. I must go into the kitchen and get supper, for she'll be as hungry as a bear when she gets home.—New York Weekly.

Tact.

"Are these shoes your best quality?"

"We have only one quality, madame."

"Then why the difference in price? A friend of mine paid six dollars yesterday, and these are only four."

"We sell by quantity, madame."

Quick sale.—Harper's Bazar.

The End of a Tiff.

Charlie—Perhaps you'd like to be skipper of my boat, young woman?

Flo—I'd rather be your first mate, dear.—Chatter.

When She Wears No Sleeve.

Crusty—Beauty! Bah! Don't hunt for beauty when you're looking for a marriageable girl, my boy. Beauty wears her heart upon her sleeve, you know.

Youngblood—Indeed! Then where does she wear it at dress receptions?—Lawrence American.

Financial Item.

Wife—What are you studying so busily these days?

Husband—I am interested in the silver problem.

Wife—So am I. Would you be kind enough to give me half a dollar?—Lowell Citizen.

An Exception.

"I read the other day that Byron was clubfooted," said Cholly. "That just shows that physical infirmities do not conflict with genius."

"No," said his friend, "unless one happens to be a blockhead."—Munsey's Weekly.

Thermometrical.

He—Why do you call your dog Zero? I thought that you named him Tom, after your fiance.

She—I used to, but Tom fell so many degrees in my estimation that I thought Zero the better name.—New York Herald.

At the Garden Gate.

"Oh, George, papa is unchaining the dog."

"It's all right. He used to be my dog. I gave him to the dealer to sell to your papa."—Boston Courier.

Nobody to Blame.

"Did the coroner render a verdict on the horse thief they lynched?"

"Yes. He said the man died of heart failure induced by a broken neck."—Puck.

Natural Enough.

Fond Mother (gazing at the baby)—He looks just like his father, doesn't he?

Careful Nurse—Yes, mum, except the beard and eye glasses.—Munsey's Weekly.

Still Owed Him.

Customer—I notice that Slater is raising a full beard.

Barber—Is that so? I wish he had done it two years ago.—Lowell Citizen.

—Rev. A. W. Yale will preach at Centerville, near Dayton, on Sunday. He will, in all probability, accept a call to the pastorate of the church there.

—Miss Anna Curran returned Thursday from Huntington, Ind., where she had been visiting, accompanied by Mrs. Geo. Curran, of that place, who will visit with relatives here.

—A 18-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jennings, died at their home on north East street Thursday evening, of cholera infantum. The funeral was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

—George W. Cook, George Dedrick and W. L. Clark went up to Cleveland today to attend the races. These gentlemen are all great admirers of Scioto Girl and watch her endeavors with no little interest.

—Burt Simpson has removed his family and household goods to Salamanca, N. Y., where they make their future home. Burt is now running express between Salamanca and Cincinnati and has long lay-overs at his eastern home.

—The government rain gauge at the residence of Dr. Raffensperger registers an exceedingly light rainfall for the month of July, as follows July 18th, .30 tenths of an inch, 24th, .45 tenths; 31st, .28 tenths, making a total of 1 and 3 tenths inches

—The funeral of David Kelly to-day was one of the most largely attended that has been known here. Nearly 120 carriages were in the procession, which reached from the cemetery gate to the court house square. It was evidence of the esteem in which Mr Kelly was held by his acquaintances.

—Att'y W. Z. Davis and Rev. R. Wallace were at Bucyrus on Thursday, where the former participated in a legal fight over some big ditch. Coming home, as they reached the north side of town, amid the rain and darkness, some one from town ran into them with another rig, tearing a wheel off Rev. Wallace's buggy. Fortunately the horse did not run and the accident has no more serious results than breaking the buggy. It was rank carelessness, however, of a kind that ought to be punished.

—"Why, now I cannot get enough to eat," says one lady who formerly had no appetite, but took Hood's sarsaparilla.

—Miss Ryder, of Delaware, arrived in the city today, and will be the guest of Mrs. S. A. Coffy, on west South street, for a couple weeks.

—Cardington Independent: Miss Millie Mounett, of Bucyrus, Miss Hattie Lee, Messrs. Will Sanders and Manington Hamilton, of Marion, spent Sunday at the home of William Lee.

—Remember the fine opaque porcelain chamber set in Buxton & McClure's window is to be given away Saturday, August 2d. A ticket with every 15¢ purchase. Only a few more tickets left. Remember the place, Buxton & McClure, 126 south Main street, Marion, O.

—Bucyrus Telegraph: Miss Ollie Wright, of Marion, is visiting Miss Edna Kerr, on south Walnut street.—George Scofield, of Marion, was in the city last evening calling on J. C. Tobias. —Miss Carrie Wright and Miss Jo Harshberger, of Marion, are visiting Mrs. J. C. Tobias.

—Marion is one of them. The Delaware Gazette says: "The first census of the United States was taken in 1790. Then there were six cities having a population of over 8,000 each. Ten years ago there were 286 such and this year it is expected that the returns will show 350 of them.

—Toledo Commercial: The immense coal trade which the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo railroad is doing this season will put that road on its feet again and place it in good financial standing. The Ohio roads are reaping a coal harvest this year, on account of the shortage of the coal output in the Pittsburg regions. President Waite will be able to produce handsome earnings and balance sheet to the stockholders of the road at their next annual meeting. President Waite seems to have a lucky star leading him along to success in the management of this road.

—At the meeting of the Agricultural society at the Fair grounds, Thursday afternoon, the improvements to take place on the grounds were decided upon and the committee instructed to proceed. An important change that will be made is the removal of the grand stand, which will be set back twenty feet from the track, and will give a better view of the racing on the home stretch. The judges' stand will also be removed to the north. A large, new sheep barn will be built, and an office fixed up in the north end of the grand stand for the secretary. This work is to be commenced at once, so that it will be completed before the opening of the fair.

—The August number of the Jenness-Miller Magazine is unusually full of interesting and valuable matter. The physical culture article leads, as usual, in interest, and it is followed by a valuable paper by the Countess de Montaign upon "Watering-Place Introductions and Country-House Etiquette." A story with an unusual plot is contributed by John L. Heaton, and the experiences of "A Girl Student in Paris." An able paper by Kate Kauffman discusses "Varying Types of Beauty," and Laura Giddings presents some excellent ideas under the title of "The Old and New Methods of Education." A most valuable article on jewels is signed Charles Blanc, and the serial being written by Annie Jenness-Miller enters into a discussion of marriage and divorce at once original and logical. A graceful poem by Mabel Hayden, the usual fascinating talk about dress, editorials and book notices, complete the August issue of this popular publication. Address

"ESTELLA, THE ILLUSION"

White's Dime Museum Artist Suicides at Lima.

Estella, the young lady who did the "half-body" act with White's dime museum, which exhibited here early in the spring, will be remembered by many who visited the show. The particulars of her death are given below in a dispatch from Lima to the State Journal, under date of 31st:

"At 1 o'clock this morning a comely young lady arrived at the Burnet house in this city and registered simply "Belle Carter," without giving any place of residence. About 4 o'clock the night clerk heard some one moaning and located it in the young lady's room. He called the landlord and together they went to her room. She was calling for help. They burst open the door and found her dying. On the dresser was a bottle partially empty, labeled "strychnine," with a spoon lying by it. Medical aid was summoned, but before the doctor arrived she was dead.

"The body was removed to Musser's undertaking establishment where a post-mortem was held but nothing new developed. All the organs were in a healthy condition. A photograph of herself was found on the dresser, taken at Beaver Falls, Pa. A telegram received this afternoon from the photographer conveys the information that her name is Estella Doan and that she formerly did the "half-body illusion act," with White's museum. She came here from Jamestown, N. Y., where her trunk was checked. She is a finely formed woman about 23 years of age."

STILL FULL OF PROMISES.

Black Diamond Boone Still Lives and Hopes and Talks.

There is no harm in reading a few lines about Col. Boone and his Black Diamond system, especially since we have had nothing for some months. The Loudonville Advocate says:

"On Saturday of last week the editor of the Advocate met Col. Albert E. Boone, on a train between Mansfield and Mt. Vernon. Col. Boone had just returned from Fredericktown where he had been in consultation with Col. Cassel, a well-known railroad man. Col. Boone has lost none of his enthusiasm in regard to the famous Black Diamond system of railroads, and asserts that every mile of the proposed and originally surveyed system will be built. Mr. Singer, his business partner, a nephew of the inventor of the Singer sewing machine, is in Europe now, arranging the detailes of the work. Col. Boone assured us that $20,000,000 of foreign capital had already been secured, mark you, ready to be used at once. Twelve hundred miles of road will be built which includes every one of the surveyed lines except the Mansfield branch, which has been abandoned. Col. Boone further assures us that the long and vexatious delays of the past few years will not be repeated and that they expect to begin work within the next 60 days and push the work to completion. We give this to our readers with the hope that the statements of Col. Boone may be carried out to the letter."

Heavy Coal Traffic.

President Waite of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railroad company has purchased 75 side-dump coal cars of the Lafayette car works of, Indiana. The cars have a capacity of about 22 tons each. They are all finished and will be delivered immediately. The coal traffic on the Hocking Valley road is so heavy that sufficient cars can not be secured to supply the demand. Mr. Waite had an opportunity to secure the cars from the Lafayette works at a low price and purchased them because they were badly needed. The company has not increased its order for coal cars with the Indianapolis car-works as reported. The Indianapolis company has been so crowded with work that it has been slow in making deliveries on orders. They have about 300 cars yet to deliver on the Hocking Valley's order for 1000.

Mrs. Blackburn Dead.

Mrs. T. J. Blackburn, wife of the well-known electric physician, died at her home on north East street, Thursday evening shortly after 6 o'clock, after a long, serious illness and an invalidism of eight years. The lady was born in Mahoning county, Ohio, and at the time of her death was 54 years of age. She and her husband have been residents of this city eight years. Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn were married in 1855, and are the parents of one child, who survives.

Burial of deceased will take place tomorrow at West Middleburg, Logan county, Ohio. The remains will leave here at 9 a. m.
